1. CONTEXT

Throughout history, human migration has been present in every age and in every part of the world. Today, advances in communications and transport, and globalisation have greatly increased the number of people with the desire and means to move to other places.

Although during the 19th century and until the first half of the 20th century, Europe was the scene of massive emigration to other continents due to the precarious situation in which people lived, today the scenario has changed. Since 2015, the arrival of refugees and migrants in Europe has reached staggering levels caused mainly by the context of conflict and regional turbulence in the Middle East. A migratory crisis that continues to this day.

In 2019, 2.7 million migrants from non-EU countries entered the EU [1] and in 2020 the total number stock reached 86.6 million migrants in Europe [2].

Today, the world's population exceeds 7 billion and Europe is one of the most populated continents and where more than 5% are immigrants from non-EU countries.

At present, the COVID-19 pandemic and measures to control the transmission of the virus have abruptly halted migration and human mobility worldwide, but at the same time, early partial evidence shows that the pandemic has revealed and reinforced vulnerabilities of current migrants in the labour market [3].

Although the increase in migration flows over the past years allowed some progress in improving the integration of migrants in host countries, some of this progress could be dissipated by the COVID-19 pandemic and its economic consequences [5].

In this sense, OECD countries continued to design and fine-tune comprehensive integration programmes for newcomers, to facilitate their rapid labour market integration and their access to basic social services.

1.1. THE CHALLENGE OF MIGRANT INTEGRATION

The migratory flows entail a change in the social fabric of the host country. These people are bearers of their own traditions, beliefs and values that define their multiple identities, which is related to the set of identities they encounter once in the country of destination; and it is here where the importance of managing diversity is vital [6]. As a result, immigrants must face difficulties in maintaining the balance between the culture of origin and the host culture and in gaining the social acceptance that will pave the way for integration.

“Integration is key to effective and comprehensive migration-management approaches. Successful integration is essential for all stakeholders, not only in terms of the benefits gained from migration, but also for the well-being of migrants and the security, stability, social harmony and prosperity of society as a whole”.

IOM International Organization of Migration

In this sense, many authors agree on the relation of feelings such as discrimination, marginalisation, isolation, need of belonging, sense of identity, or any other disturbance or distress affecting the person's in their wellbeing as a possible trigger for tendencies or support to radicalism as a meaning and purpose for life [7] [8] [9] [10] [11].

Maintaining the balance becomes much more difficult when it comes to young people<sup>1</sup>, due to their identity is constantly being built precisely because of the need for social recognition. The obstacles or facilities they encounter in their adaptation will determine the choice of the identity they consider most coherent. The environment in all its forms plays a fundamental role in the process of searching for and determining one's identity.

“Youth migration thus responds not only to structural conditions but also to sociocultural expectations and discourses which are particular to young people and their familial and societal setting” [...] “Defining youth migration as ongoing and formative recognizes that both youth transitions and migration experiences evolve over time and place, shaping and being shaped by one another”

Searching for clarity: Defining and mapping youth migration. Martina Belmonte and Simon McMahon. Joint Research Centre, European Commission

<sup>1</sup> As Juarez et al. state (2013), youth is a time of life when people “experience enormous changes due to physical maturation, which is accompanied by cognitive, social/emotional, and interpersonal changes”. Similarly, migration represents a transition from one place to another, which brings with it a shift in political, economic and social context. Migration can in this way be disruptive, resulting in a need to adapt behaviours in response to new social structures, interpersonal networks, and attitudes and expectations of others (ibid)

A failure on their path to tolerance, inclusion and integration can lead to violent demonstrations or radical approaches. Beyond all the research that has been done on this issue, it is clear that social integration and inclusion can reduce the risk of negative risk experiences in adult life such as incarceration and by extension criminal acts [12].

“To effectively address the drivers of violent extremism and promote peace, youth must be engaged as partners in the design and implementation of relevant programs and policies. With commitments to learning, to partnership, to innovation, and to impact, we are ready to address violent extremism, a defining challenge for our generation.”

1.2. KEY TERMS

The terminology relating to the concept of migration and the field of study may vary according to the country and context. The most relevant terms referred to throughout the document are listed below.

TERM	DEFINITION
Alienation	A person suffers from alienation in the form of 'powerlessness' when she is conscious of the gap between what she would like to do and what she feels capable of doing [13].
Acculturation	A series of changes in cultural mores (ideas, words, values, norms, behaviour, institutions) resulting from direct and continuous contact between groups of different cultures, particularly through migratory movements or economic exchanges. Acculturation can occur when one group adopts the traits of the dominant culture of a society in public life while keeping its own culture in the private sphere. Acculturation may also result in the creation of a new culture, one that synthesizes elements of the two original cultures [14].
Belonging	Both identification with and feelings of attachment to a social community [15].
Discrimination	The unfair or unequal treatment of a person or group of persons based on their classification in a “protected status”, such as race, national origin, sex, religion, and political background.
Extremism	It is characterised by totalitarian and anti-democratic ideologies, intolerance to the views of others, hostile imagery and a division into “them” and “us”. Extremist ideas may be expressed in different ways, and ultimately, they may bring individuals or groups to use violent or undemocratic methods as a tool to reaching a specific political objective, or they may seek to undermine the democratic social order or make threats or carry out demeaning harassment against groups of people based on e.g. their skin colour, sexuality or belief [16].

	Refers to persons or groups that commit or seek to legitimize violence or other illegal acts, with reference to societal conditions that they disagree with.
Identity	The individual characteristics by which a person or thing is recognised. One's psychological identity is a developed, stable sense of self and resolved security in one's basic values, attitudes, and beliefs. Developmentally, its formation typically occurs in a crisis of adolescence or young adulthood, and is tumultuous and emotionally challenging. However, "the successful development of personal identity is essential to the integrity and continuity of the personality" (Crenshaw, 198648, p. 391)
Identity crisis	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> <li>1. Distance from culture, religious heritage and uncomfortable with their place in the society around them [17].</li> <li>2. Second and third generation immigrant and diaspora communities may experience 'cultural marginalisation' in terms of alienation and lack of belonging to either home or host society [18].</li> </ol>
Identity seeker	Identity seekers are seeking to belong to something and want to assimilate into a defining organisation. The identity seeker is looking for a group and an idea to be part of. It is noted that this urge is likely to be a particularly strong need for young people [19].
Inclusion	A process designed to allow and achieve the full participation of all in economic, social, political and cultural life of a given community or society. Although there is no commonly agreed definition, the idea of an inclusive society is based on respect for all human rights and fundamental freedoms, cultural and religious diversity, social justice and the special needs of vulnerable and disadvantaged groups, democratic participation and the rule of law [20] [14].
Integration	The process of becoming an accepted part of a society [21].
Immigration	The action by which a person establishes his or her usual residence in the territory of a Member State for a period that is, or is expected to be, of at least 12 months, having previously been usually resident in another Member State or a third country [22].
Migrant Flow	The number of migrants counted as moving or being authorized to move, to or from a given location in a defined period of time [14].
Migration	Refers to the in-[immigration] or out-movement [emigration] of (groups of) people from one place to a usually distant other location, with the intention to settle at the destination, temporarily or permanently. This process can be voluntary or forced, regular (legal) or irregular (illegal), within one country or across international borders. Refugees are a sub-group of international migrants who seek asylum or have obtained protection abroad under the terms of the UN Refugee Convention of 1951. [8]
Person susceptible of being radicalised	In theory, any person is susceptible to be radicalised but there are certain risk groups: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>▪ Youths</li> </ul>

	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>▪ Unaccompanied minors and minors who will no longer be protected by the acquisition of their legal age of majority. They may be the most vulnerable profile a priori.</li> <li>▪ Young women with affective ties to radicalised men, regardless of their nationality or origin.</li> </ul> In all cases an economic environment of low income or certain personal situations (failed relationships, isolation, desire to start a new life, lack of identity, etc.) could lead to the radicalisation of these people [23].
Radicalisation	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> <li>1. The process whereby people turn to extremism [24].</li> <li>2. The process in which a person gradually accepts the ideas and methods of extremism and, possibly, joins its organised groups. Personal circumstances, group dynamics as well as political, financial and cultural factors may all contribute to radicalisation processes [16].</li> <li>3. Any process that leads to greater intransigence or fanaticism [23].</li> </ol>
Radicalisation leading to violent extremism	The process whereby a person accepts the use of violence to achieve political, ideological or religious goals, including violent extremism and terrorism [25].
Social isolation	The feeling of being segregated from one's community [13]. "While social isolation is typically experienced as a form of personal stress, its sources are deeply embedded in the social organization of the modern world. With increased isolation and atomization, much of our daily interactions are with those who are strangers to us and with whom we lack any ongoing social relationships. [26]"
Vulnerability	Describes the condition of being capable of being injured; difficult to defend; open to moral or ideological attack [27].
Young/ youth	The United Nations defines youth as persons between the ages of 15 and 24 with all UN statistics based on this range [28] but may varies to other age groups listed by Member States which may be in the range of 18-30.

1.3. MODELS AND ASSUMPTIONS

The conceptualisation of the factors affecting migration at different levels is important in order to situate the different models proposed by different authors. For this purpose, the factors influencing each of these levels have been compiled in a generic way resulting in a multidimensional map of drivers. This environment may be seen as the challenges migrants may face in a holistic way.

This section includes some models related to the above-mentioned influencing factors. In addition, these influencing factors will also help us to look for practices or experiences that have been carried out in relation to migration and which will also help us to compile the practices and experiences that have been carried out in relation to migration

1.3.1. Integration model approach: immigrant acculturation

There is a great importance between the individual and the group. One of the most popular approaches to the psychology of immigration has been the model of immigrant acculturation (Berry, 2003) and subsequently adapted by other authors. Acculturation is proposed as a multidimensional process consisting of the confluence among heritage-cultural and receiving-cultural practices, values, and identifications [29].

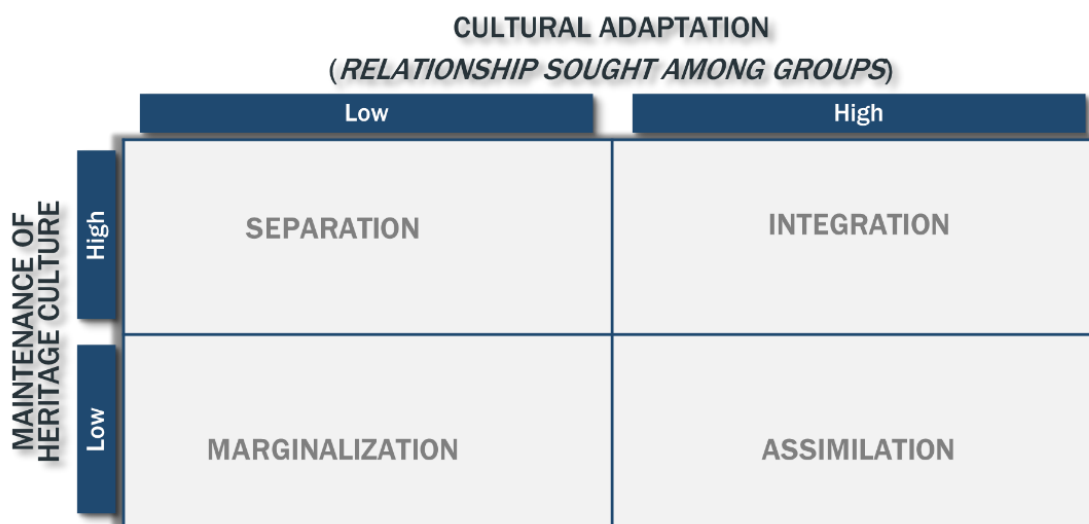

Figure 7. The two-dimensional acculturation model of Berry and its four acculturation strategies (Adapted from Berry)

According to Figure 7, as a result of the two-dimensional acculturation models, there are four distinct strategies of cultural change:

1. Assimilation. Adopts the receiving culture and discards the heritage culture.
2. Separation. Rejects the receiving culture and retains the heritage culture
3. Integration. Adopts the receiving culture and retains the heritage culture.
4. Marginalization. Rejects both the heritage and receiving cultures

As a result of this model, integration would be the preferred acculturation strategy. Although this model has been used by many authors, one of the most obvious criticisms is that the model does not fit all in a "one size fits all" perspective [29], but, in any case, it provides a good example of the issue at stake.

1.3.2. Heuristic model: dimensions and relevant parties involved in the integration process

According to the authors of the model, the basic definition of integration encompasses three analytically distinct dimensions:

1. The legal-political. Residence and political rights and statuses.
2. The socio-economic. Social and economic position of residents, irrespective of their national citizenship.
3. The cultural-religious. domain of perceptions and practices of immigrants and the receiving society as well as their reciprocal reactions to difference and diversity.

It is important to realize that these three dimensions are not fully independent of one another.

In this model, on the one hand there are the migrants and on the other the receiving society. It is the interaction between the two, that determines the direction and the temporal outcomes of the integration process [30].

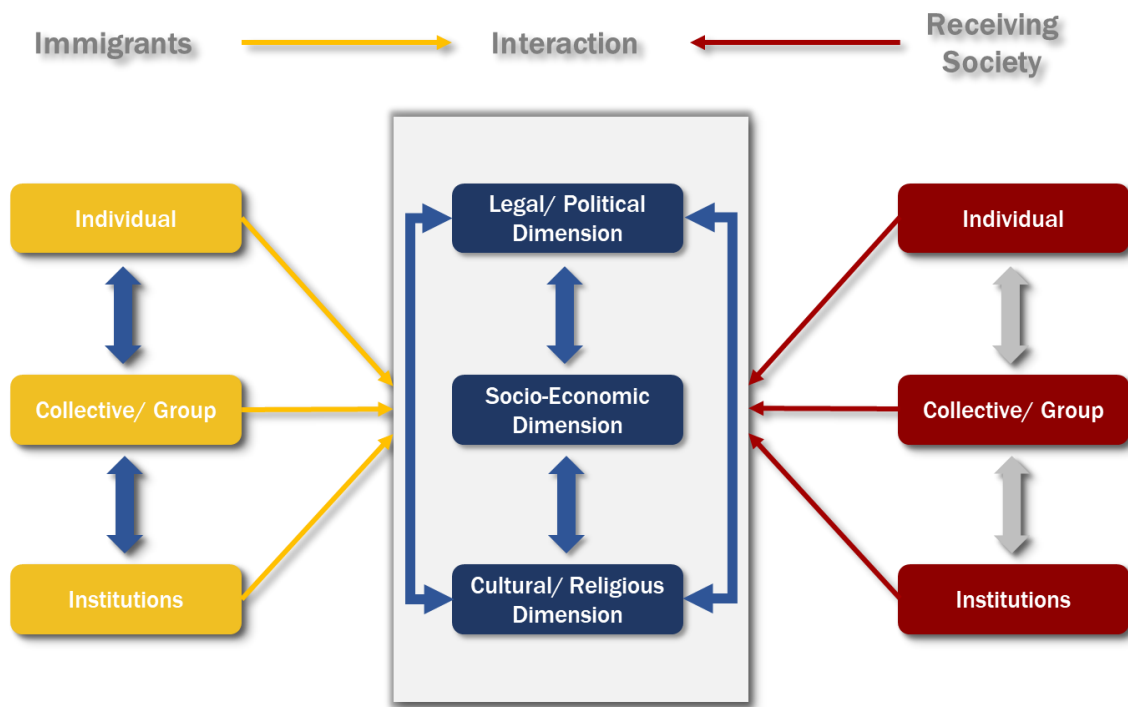

Figure 8. A heuristic model for the empirical study of integration process [30]

1.3.3. Esser’s Integration Theory

Another model of interest is Esser’s model (2001). He proposes and distinguishes between two basic components related to integration: system integration and social integration.

In case of social integration can be achieved through four dimensions:

1. Culturation. It refers to individuals acquiring essential knowledge and skills (i.e. language skills and cultural and behavioural norms) to be able to act and interact in an appropriate and successful manner in the host society.

2. Positioning or structural integration, refers to the occupation of a specific social position by the actor in the social system – this is the most important stage in social integration.
3. Interaction, refers to a kind of social conduct where individuals mutually orientate themselves based on one another’s knowledge and behaviour. Culturation and positioning are crucial facilitators of or impediments to interaction among migrants and locals of the host society.
4. Identification refers to an emotional relationship between the migrant and the host society. The other three dimensions are crucial to the formation of this emotional connection, but this dimension focuses on the host society that also needs to be open to – or at least tolerant of – the migrant [31].

1.3.4. Personal Construct Theory Model of radicalization

Personal construct theory (PCT) is a theory of personality and cognition developed by the American psychologist George Kelly in the 1950s. The theory addresses the psychological reasons for actions. Kelly proposed that individuals can be psychologically evaluated according to similarity–dissimilarity poles, which he called personal constructs (schemas, or ways of seeing the world) [32]. The theory is considered by some psychologists as forerunner to theories of cognitive therapy [33] [34].

In this sense, the authors of the proposed model correlate the constructing process of an individual with the situational factors that may trigger the person on the path towards radicalisation [35].

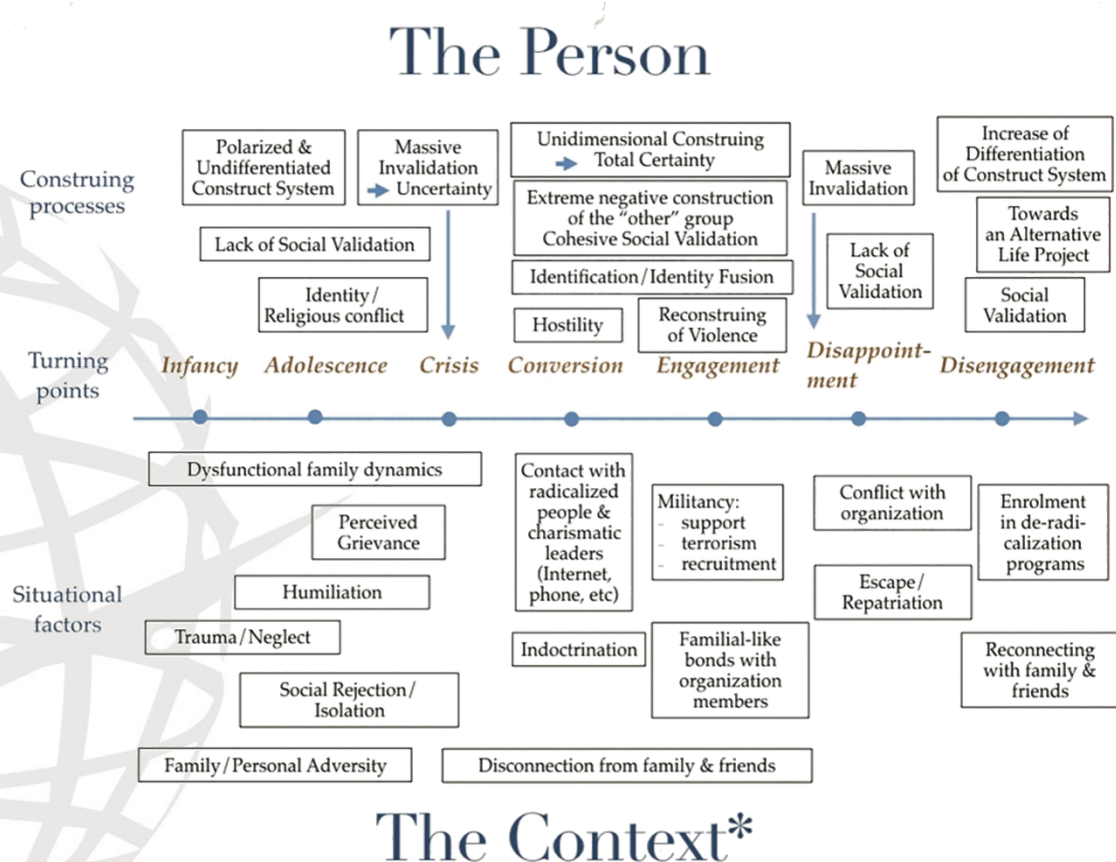

Figure 10. A personal construct heuristic model for the process of radicalization and deradicalization. Vertical arrows indicate “Transformative Trigger”. *Broader context includes social and political national/international conflicts, economic inequalities, religious fundamentalist confronted discourses (in worship places or web pages), social marginalization, and stigmatization [35].

1.3.5. Radicalisation models

As mentioned above, there are many factors that may trigger violent radicalism as a sense of meaning and life purpose [7] [8] [9] [10] [11].

Many authors have defined models to capture the process that leads to violent radicalization, even though they know that this is a complex problem involving multiple interrelated variables [36]. When we understand radicalization as a process of change, the New York Police Department proposed a bottom-up approach (NYPD model<sup>2</sup>) that lead to terrorism divided in four steps.

The first stage, describes the individual’s world in terms of background and environment (lifestyle, socio-economic status, religion...). This is considered to be the departure point towards radicalisation. The second stage comes with the self-identification which includes how the subject interprets and explores the radical world in a conversion process.

During the third phase, the individual adopts the ‘ideology’ for, finally, in phase four, entails self-designation and accepts its individual duty to operate, also called Jihadisation [37].

In a more holistic approach, the following model shows the process of becoming a violent radical by showing the why and how. According to the author, the purpose of the model is to serve during teaching, learning and research by using a tree as a metaphor [36].

6. SECOND MODEL PROPOSED (MIND MAP).

The figure shows the second holistic proposed model which provides a first approach about why and how a 'normal citizen' may become a 'violent radical who commits terrorist acts'.

2. POLICY AND LEGAL FRAMEWORK

2.1. MIGRATION

After the beginning of the so-called migration crisis in 2015, the European Agenda on Migration<sup>3</sup> pushed for increased cooperation with third countries in the area of returns and readmission as one of the key political solutions in responding to what was framed as a “refugee crisis”. But it was not until 2020 that the Action Plan on the Integration and Inclusion (2021-2027) was released.

Inclusion of immigrants and building an inclusive society are essential to mitigate the effects of extreme radicalism and this new document expands to include the integration of EU citizens of migrant background, in addition to third-country nationals (TCNs).

The current plan also brings additional focus on:

- [1] Ensuring inclusion for all, including through targeted and tailored support.
- [2] Enhancing migrant participation, including through the recent formation of an Expert Group on the views of migrants with the EC.
- [3] Mainstreaming gender and including women.
- [4] Building more partnerships with various integration stakeholders.
- [5] Closer cooperation with regional and local authorities.
- [6] More emphasis on long-term integration, including through funding.

2.2. FIGHT AGAINST RADICALISATION AND TERRORISM

In the last two decades Europe has been the scene of several terrorist attacks with a total of 658 victims in the period 2000-2016 [38].

In recent years in Western Europe these mobilizations have been carried out by teenagers and young people of second-generation Muslim immigrants. They are often caught in a strange and difficult balance between cultures, which are especially prone to experience identity crises related to a diaspora situation. Despite feeling little attachment to the nation of origin of their parents or grandparents, too many of these young people show little or no affection for the EU country in which they were born or grew up. Jihadist propaganda offers a radical and violent solution to these people's identity conflicts, seducing them with a different concept of nationhood: the nation of Islam as proclaimed not only by the Islamic state, but also by al-Qaeda.

At European level the fight against radicalisation and terrorism is supported by three intergovernmental organisations: The Council of Europe (CoE), the European Union, and the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe (OSCE).

Although the radicalisation is primarily a responsibility of Member States, to support their efforts to prevent radicalisation, a number of strategies, policies, and initiatives have been proposed at European level.

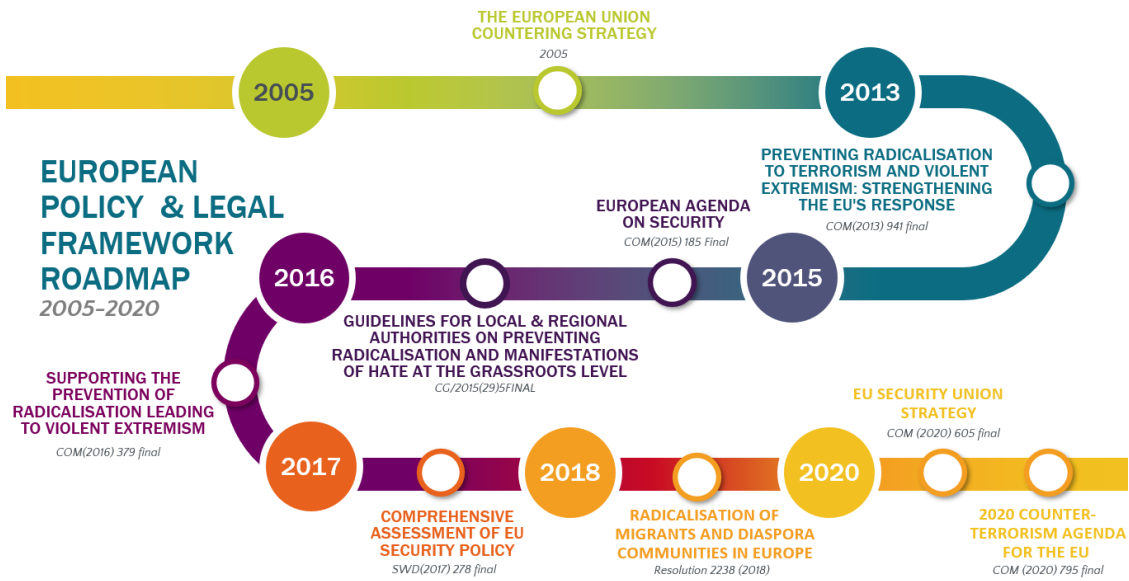

Figure 16. European Policy and Legal Framework - Fight against radicalisation and terrorism

“The Assembly encourages Member States to promote policies which underline the benefits of diversity and develop, among young people, a positive self-perception of individual identity free of any inferiority complexes so as to prevent alienation, the lack of a sense of belonging, marginalisation and isolation of communities from prevailing, and providing a fertile breeding ground for radicalisation.”

Resolution 2238 (2018) CoE

3. NATIONAL INITIATIVES IN EUROPE

The management and support of migrants and therefore the prevention of radicalization is basically a set of political, social, educational and even religious measures, aimed at a group of non-specific individuals with the objective of assisting in their integration. Bearing this in mind, it is clear that the prevention of radicalisation cannot be a task assigned exclusively to the security forces, but rather requires participation at different levels and with the involvement of both social and behavioural science professionals and society as a whole [40].

While this paper seeks to address the case studies related to resolution of conflict and support for identity construction in migratory situations in most cases, these actions are included in wider strategies whether at national, regional or even local level. Therefore, this section will include all those strategies, plans or actions on the one hand, in terms of integration and, on the other hand, in terms of preventing radicalisation of migrants.

Next, there is a non-exhausted list by country of those activities that have been considered relevant for the present study. For each country, it also includes the policy context relevant to both migration issues and the prevention of radicalisation.

-  NAP.I Nationaler Aktionsplan für Integration [Austrian National Action Plan for Integration]. Its aim is to optimise, pool and systematically develop the measures for successful integration of the Republic of Austria, the federal provinces, cities, municipalities, social partners and civil society organisations. The National Action Plan is the basis for further measures in the seven key areas of action: Language and education, work and employment, rule of law and values, health and social issues, intercultural dialogue, sport and leisure, housing and the regional dimension of integration [41].

“Religious fanaticism and negative influences from abroad are also challenges that we as a society must face for the greater good. Anti-democratic ideologies like political Islam pose a serious threat to social peace and cohesion. The riots in the Vienna district of Favoriten this summer also clearly highlighted the need for a stronger focus on segregated social groups, especially in congested areas. The newly founded Documentation Centre for Political Islam will perform important work in this regard, and shed light where it is needed”.

TYPE	Programme
SUMMARY	A comprehensive coaching and information programme addressing newcomers (including asylum seekers) for the first two years after arrival. After that, foreign residents benefit from non-targeted measures, for instance from a programme fighting labour market exclusion of low-skilled groups. Vienna has avoided high segregation due to its large and well spread social housing. However, migrants can only access it after five years of residency in the city, before which they rely on private rental market. Vienna establishes close contacts with migrant associations and NGOs at the district level and engages public consultations when formulating integration concepts. This report sheds light on how the municipality and non-state partners work together with the other levels of government for sustainable migrant and refugee integration [46].

LOCAL STRATEGY FOR THE PREVENTION OF RADICALISATION LIÈGE

TYPE	Strategy [62]
SUMMARY	Objectives <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>▪ Preventing radicalisation</li> <li>▪ Raising awareness among the general public and organising educational actions for</li> <li>▪ Young people</li> <li>▪ Training the front-line stakeholders</li> <li>▪ Accompanying radicalised youths and their family</li> <li>▪ Exchanging information and coordinating</li> </ul>
GEOGRAPHICAL AREA	Liège, Belgium
ORGANISATION	Liège City Council
TARGET GROUP	Local population / Local workers and municipal officers (in the areas of education, social work, multiculturalism) / Youths at risk of radicalisation (“vulnerable”) or radicalised / Families faced with a process of radicalisation.

APPROACH	Activities designed and carried out within the framework of this policy.
PRACTICES/ ACTIVITIES	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>▪ Educational prevention This type of action seeks to strengthen the resilience of youths to radicalisation through educational interventions in schools, neighbourhood halls, sports clubs, etc. The objectives are to develop young people's critical judgement, to educate them on citizenship and to strengthen their self-esteem.</li> <li>▪ Raising awareness among the general public This aspect of the strategy seeks to raise awareness among the general public about peaceful coexistence, tolerance, dialogue and civic-mindedness. This includes public debates, the showing of films on radicalisation, and public interventions by people who are directly concerned or affected by this issue, such as mothers whose children have travelled to Syria.</li> <li>▪ Training local workers and municipal officers Training sessions are organised for frontline stakeholders such as street workers or other social workers who intervene in Liege's neighbourhoods and with young people. The themes tackled during the training are: problem definition, psycho-social process, at-risk groups and vulnerable youngsters, management of sensitive information, and “vigilance criteria”. The theoretical content of the training is developed together with the University of Liege. The Liege Regional Centre for the Integration of Foreign People or People of Foreign Origin (Centre régional d'intégration des personnes étrangères ou d'origine étrangère de Liège, CRIPEL), an intercultural organisation, collaborates in informing the public about this training.</li> <li>▪ Psychological and social support to radicalised youths This aspect of the strategy focuses on working directly with young people and offering them and their family individual support. Youngsters must volunteer to be part of this scheme. The municipality works closely with the Faculty of Psychology of the University of Liege to develop a support path for these youths, with the aim of reversing the radicalisation process and enabling disengagement and social inclusion.</li> <li>▪ Exchange of information and coordination. The city of Liege takes part in several exchange schemes, both at national and international level. Liege is part of the national cities' coordination of the national Strategic Plan for Prevention and Security, including the R Plan.</li> </ul>

ACTION PLAN FOR THE PREVENTION OF RADICALISATION PROCESSES THAT CAN LEAD TO EXTREMISM AND TERRORISM

TYPE	Action plan [63]
SUMMARY	This document constitutes a strategic framework for dealing with radicalisation and identifies some key action areas and measures and aims to respond to the locally need of support in this matter.

GEOGRAPHICAL AREA	Flandes, Belgium
ORGANISATION	Government of Flanders
TARGET GROUP	Various.
APPROACH	Creation of a framework document on integral security in relation to the processes of radicalization in which local administrations must fully assume their leadership role in dealing with the processes of radicalization. Local administrations have the task of reacting to this in an appropriate manner and making optimal use of the instruments at their disposal.
PRACTICES/ ACTIVITIES	The areas of action and measures defined in the above-mentioned plan include those relating to young people and migrants incorporating identity crises. “5. We provide support to first-line employees (care providers, teachers, youth workers, VDAB consultants, imams, etc.) with regard to acquiring knowledge and skills, through education, expertise development and making good practices accessible. “ Action 5.1 We will support first-line workers in dealing with radicalisation in young people through a project subsidy to the non-profitmaking organisation Motief. Motief offers a tailor-made four-day training package for teachers, youth workers and welfare workers on identity development in Muslim youngsters. Through this training, Motief more specifically aims to extend first-line workers' room for manoeuvre by increasing insight into the ideological identity development of youngsters, by learning to detect and respond to signals of radicalisation in youngsters and by developing an emancipatory approach which encourages youngsters' self-development and critical citizenship. Action 5.5 The 'Agentschap I&amp;I' (agency for integration and civic integration) will give priority to supplying its expertise on interculturalism to local actors in the municipalities facing radicalisation problems. The Agency for Integration and Civic Integration will supply its expertise on diversity and intercultural competences to local actors in the municipalities facing radicalisation problems, when there is demand for it is (peer-to-peer pathways, interculturalisation pathways, training on intercultural communication, training on identity development in youngsters with a migration background, ...) 9. We reinforce organisations that can support young people in their search for an identity of their own. Many civil society organisations, youth and sports movements, community development initiatives, self-organisations or mosque associations can contribute in a positive manner to the search of young people for an identity of their own. After all, they are often most tuned in to the social world of the young people. Action 9.1 We will support projects which focus on the prevention of radicalisation. The 'Agentschap voor Binnenlands Bestuur' (Agency for Local and Provincial Government) launches a call for the introduction of projects which focus on the prevention of radicalisation and on the development of a positive identity and which reinforce youngsters' and young adults' position in society and increase their social involvement (e.g. mosque associations, youth or sports organisations, self-organisations ...).” [63]

RADIX TOOL

TYPE	Tool
SUMMARY	The Radix Tool Antwerp was developed by the City of Antwerp and is meant to guide debates between different partners. The instrument allows to list an individual's vulnerabilities and strengths as well as the structural factors that can lead to (violent) radicalisation. This in turn can be used to decide how to further the work with an individual and on what areas of life the intervention should focus on. The instrument thus ensures that all partners speak the same language, but also aims to build a relationship of trust between all the partners. The objective of the Radix tool does is not to estimate the security risk posed by an individual, but rather to develop an individualised approach whereby the individual receives the help they need [66].
GEOGRAPHICAL AREA	City of Antwerp, Belgium
ORGANISATION	City of Antwerp together with partners from the welfare sector, police and public prosecutor's office
TARGET GROUP	Diverse
APPROACH	Shared framework to cooperate with all partners and to support front-line practitioners when they feel something is wrong.
PRACTICES/ ACTIVITIES	The instrument serves to support front-line practitioners when they feel something is wrong: it helps to map different aspects of the life of a person in a structured way, for instance during a conversation. Such an instrument helps counsellors to look for various factors, to identify what information is still lacking, in which domains someone possibly needs support and what type of partner should be engaged [67].

SAVE BELGIUM. 2013 - Present

Collaborating partners: Schaerbeek1030, Fédération Wallonie-Bruxelles, Centre de la prévention de la radicalisation menant à la violence, Maison de Quartier Saint Antoine, Fondation Roi Baudoin, Mothers for Life.

This Belgian association serves as a tool to raise awareness against violent radicalization through the direct involvement of the families concerned by this phenomenon and directly exposed to a young person's approach to violent extremism.

This is an educational approach, at the request of schools and institutes interested in addressing violent radicalization with the impact of actors affected by it. It also serves as a platform for accompanying new families with doubts about the possible radicalisation of their child and offers advice on how to act with the child or with the authorities if the young person has already left Belgian territory.

Among its most important characteristics, it is worth mentioning:

- Serving as a link between parents and the radicalized youth for monitoring and prevention.

- Positioning as a key player in the fight against violent radicalisation and interlocutor with the Belgian authorities
- Involvement in the search for activities (seminars, training) aimed at promoting understanding of the phenomenon and the search for solutions adapted to each case.
- Acting as a collaborative network between different organizations [68].

“JE SUIS AHMED, LÈONIE, CHARLIE, OF NIET”. 2016-2017

Association MARKS

This is a storytelling campaign based on the projection of digital stories of young Brussels people from sensitive areas. This initiative, "I am Ahmed, Lèonie, Charlie or nothing", was extended in the Brussels neighbourhoods of Molenbeek and Scharbeek, two of the geographical points in Belgium most vulnerable to the expansion of violent discourse.

The initiative was aimed at building a counter-narrative based on bringing together the stories, in video format, of the inhabitants of Molenbeek and Scharbeek to whom, as a result of the terrorist attacks that hit Europe in 2015, public opinion was sketching an image prone to the emergence of Islamophobia or other representations of hatred and intolerance.

It was structured in 3 factors:

1. The involvement of young people from disadvantaged geographical areas.
2. The use of new technologies as the main ally.
3. Dissemination of results on digital platforms for the propagation of tolerance-based discourse [69].

Kit to dismantle conspiracy theories. BePax. 2017

The initiative Kit constitutes a useful tool of free use for teachers during and as a guide of theoretical notions on existing and successful forms of manipulation among the young public.

The BePax kit compiles examples of arguments that have penetrated society and the steps to be taken to demystify the mistrust that exists between institutions and media with young people. In this way, it encourages young people to learn to be critical and avoid extremism.

In addition, the BePax association also promotes and collaborates with seminars from an educational perspective and with a prevention approach for educators to put these exercises into practice [69] [70].

RODINA ODVEDLE (THE FAMILY NEXT DOOR)

TYPE	Project
SUMMARY	Project Next Door Family is an innovative way to integrate migrants into the Czech society. Every year, an informal lunch takes place between Czech families and families of immigrants living in the in Czech Republic, directly at their home place. As traditionally, on the last Sunday of November, families of foreigners from third countries will meet Czech families in the form of a common lunch, always in the household of one of the families who will take the role of a host. The aim of these meetings is to bring Czech families closer to the families of foreigners, thus helping to integrate foreigners into our society and at the same time help Czech families to meet people living with us. Czech families and families of foreigners legally living in Czech Republic can apply for the project (due to funding). The term family also includes a couple who considers themselves as a family (they don't have to be married). The project is intended for foreigners from third countries (outside the EU). Mixed marriages where one of the partners is an EU citizen cannot participate in the project. Registered families will be paired based on age, hobbies, interests, language and, of course, the city of residence, simply so that the members of both families have enough common topics to talk to. This makes the relationship more likely to continue successfully in the future. At each lunch there is an assistant who will personally contact both families and give them information about the other family and about the meeting. If necessary, the assistant should help break the initial barriers and shame at the meeting. The aim of the project is to improve relations between the majority society and foreigners, to build a multicultural society and to understand different cultures [76] [77].

The overall goal is now to send refugees back to their home countries as soon as conditions allow for it. The word 'integration' has been replaced with 'self-support and return' [80].

DANISH SECURITY AND INTELLIGENCE SERVICE IN DIALOGUE WITH IMAMS IN DENMARK

TYPE	Initiative [92]
SUMMARY	Since 2004 and as part of PET’s multi-faceted approach to the prevention and combating of terrorism, there has been an ongoing dialogue with a number of representatives from ethnic minorities and imams. Based on own experience and experience from abroad, PET plans to further develop this dialogue by extending the circle of dialogue partners to include additional representatives from Muslim communities in Denmark who may exert influence in their local communities. The objective is to strengthen the “disagreeing dialogue” by entering into dialogue with individuals who represent controversial views. Often, it is precisely these individuals who have the best chance of influencing the attitudes of the young people who are in a process of radicalisation, in a non-violent direction. This initiative (Initiative 8) has been included in the mentioned Action plan to prevent extremist views and radicalisation among young people in Denmark [87].

APPROACH	Dialogue

Human equality and elements such as active listening, language that deescalates conflicts etc. as having a central role;</li> <li>2. Emphasis on the fact that it is a very small minority group amongst Muslims in Denmark that is involved in violent radicalisation;</li> <li>3. Clarity that in the opinion of the Service, members of Muslim communities are not considered as a part of the problem but a part of the solution;</li> <li>4. The controversial subjects being debated in Danish society must not be ignored but be part of the agendas of these dialogue meetings;</li> <li>5. Monik is a multicultural NGO founded in Helsinki in the year 2011 by young adults with a migrant background.

The two main objectives of the organization are:

1. To improve integration of migrants

SUPPORTED ACCOMMODATION SCHEME

TYPE	Plan. Accommodation and support for people from squats and shanty towns
SUMMARY	The first censuses carried out in 2014, which highlighted the presence of around 1,400 Roma in Toulouse, led the City Council and the Prefecture to initiate a plan to reduce the main shanty towns from 2015. This plan has enabled the construction of a method for evacuating occupied sites under calm conditions and taking into account the people concerned with solutions adapted to their situation. <sup>8</sup>
GEOGRAPHICAL AREA	Toulouse – France
ORGANISATION	Toulouse City Council (municipal level)
TARGET GROUP	Families with children, single men and couples
APPROACH	Different activities
PRACTICES/ ACTIVITIES	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>▪ Any dismantling implemented requires the conjunction of three elements: obtaining an eviction order, immediately securing the released plot and taking into account the evicted public. The people occupying the shanty towns are first subjected to a social assessment in order to prepare an accommodation offer adapted to their family composition.</li> <li>▪ Initiated in the form of an integration village in Grynfogel, the accommodation and integration scheme for people in precarious situations following the dismantling of squats and shanty towns has favoured, since 2015, the model of dispersed flats in the Toulouse area and to a lesser extent in Metropolitan France.</li> <li>▪ Since 2015, Toulouse City Council and the Prefecture have set up a squat monitoring unit which meets regularly. These</li> </ul>

<sup>8</sup> According to the report Civil Society Monitoring on the Implementation of the National Roma Integration Strategy in France, it has been observed that no children are able to enter and follow a mainstream curriculum without external support. [176]

	meetings, coupled with information collected by the SIAO, have highlighted new waves of arrivals of non-EU migrants in Toulouse over the last two to three years. These new arrivals and the conditions in which they settle highlight the lack of solutions in the national reception system for asylum seekers, in an extremely tense context for emergency accommodation. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>▪ The City of Toulouse, with its experience in slum clearance, intends to continue its commitment to these people, in addition to the actions of the State. Through its slum clearance policy, the city of Toulouse has 150 housing units which have accommodated more than 1100 Bulgarian and Romanian intra-community residents. The fluidity of this system means that it can now be adapted to the local situation by accommodating migrants who are beneficiaries of international protection and are integrated into a professional integration project. Some of this accommodation will come from the opening of the supported accommodation scheme previously deployed for European nationals, and in which the town hall has begun to receive refugees.</li> <li>▪ The City will implement, manage and coordinate the overall social support (access to rights, health, taking into account particular vulnerabilities linked to the asylum process, children's schooling, literacy, social and cultural integration as citizens, access to housing).</li> <li>▪ The opening of this support system to non-EU citizens would be primarily aimed at families with children and isolated young people aged 18-25, with priority given to social and professional integration.</li> </ul>

MELTING POTES

TYPE	Programme [103]
SUMMARY	Whether in the media, in their daily lives or in political discourse, Roma are frequently victims of violence and various forms of discrimination (difficulties in accessing health care, schooling, employment, housing, etc.). This discrimination is most often the result of an almost total and systematic ignorance of the rights of these populations. The Roma themselves are often unaware that they have access to the same rights as any other person. Objectives: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> <li>1. REGIONAL PLAN FOR THE PREVENTION OF RADICALIZATION AND THE REGIONAL CHARTER OF SECULARISM AND VALUES OF THE REPUBLIC. (Plan régional de prévention de la radicalisation et la charte régionale de la laïcité et des valeurs de la République)

TYPE	Plan (2018) [105]
SUMMARY	Objective: to prevent radicalisation and defend secularism. In this context, it wished to act specifically towards high schools. The phenomena of radicalization appear more frequently among young people in search of identity and can be reinforced by family or school breakdowns. Furthermore, the Region will also give its privileged support to projects that aim to defend republican values, the principle of secularism and the prevention of radicalization.
GEOGRAPHICAL AREA	Hauts-de-France Region, France
ORGANISATION	Regional Council
TARGET GROUP	Diverse and young people
APPROACH	Multi-actor
PRACTICES/ ACTIVITIES	Schools: training actions will be developed for the staff, allowing them to detect any sign of radicalization and to be able to make reports. Projects: In 2020, the Hauts-de-France region launched a call for projects aimed at secondary school students to promote the values of the Republic and prevent radicalisation phenomena. The objectives are: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>▪ Protecting minds against radicalization by creating awareness about the defence of the values of the Republic,</li> <li>▪ Develop critical thinking and republican discourse in various registers (including historical, cultural, humorous, artistic, etc.) carried out by different stakeholders (intellectuals, sportsmen, associations, etc.)</li> </ul> To work in all transversely and complementarity with the educational community.

3.7.2.3. Other activities of interest

Activities in the city of Nice

- Youth ateliers for the development of critical and enlightened spirit and empowerment (ALTER EGEAUX).
- A theatre play “Catarina Segurana” about parts of the history of Nice with the aim to strengthen integration in the region (LA SEMEUSE).
- An activity that should help young people to foster competences and democratic values (Université populaire de la jeunesse). Out of this, two projects will be created: Memory Exhibition and theatre debate (supported by the NGO GALICE).
- Theatre with students to show the fragility of adolescence (Compagnie MIRANDA) [106].

Les Complots du before grand journal. Canal +. 2013-2015

This initiative made forty videos available on the Youtube platform. Through one of its maximum audience programs, Before du Grand Journal, this initiative urged the construction of a counter-narrative conceived from humour and with the intention of making a dent in its audience.

The main merit of this initiative lies in the extreme difficulty of finding formats in traditional media that actively and exclusively involve themselves in the prevention of radicalisation by dismantling one of the axes that make it feasible in European societies: complotism.

Les Complots du Before du Grand Journal was able to exploit in a limited time (1-2 minutes) the loudspeaker that it is for the preventive cause to find a space in a prime-time television program [69].

STOPDJHADISME.COM. 2015-2018 and Toujours le choix. 2016

Stopjihadisme.com was a national prevention programme launched after the first wave of attacks in France in 2015, which became a citizen's guide to prevention against radicalisation and a tool for detection, action and intervention on religious radicalisation.

The campaign TOUJOURS LE CHOIX (“You always have a choice”), also launched by the French government in 2016, is an interactive game aimed at young people that uses communication exploited by Daesh on platforms to explain in a playful and pedagogical way the outcome that adherence to Jihadist ideology can have in a young person's life [107] [108].

THE KICKING GIRLS

TYPE	Project
SUMMARY	This project involves various schools in urban quarters with high proportions of migrant youth. The schools, in cooperation with nearby cooperation clubs, provide so-called girl's working groups (Arbeitsgemeinschaften) in the school and the coaches are mostly female members of the club involved. The girls acquire the basics of football and develop an enjoyment of the game in a "protected environment". Separate girls' football breaks in the school playground and class and school tournaments encourage the girls to join in. In this way, through the girls' football working groups, it is possible to reach, inspire and involve girls with a migrant background. The parents accept the participation of their daughters in the football working group because the school a familiar place is for them [110] [76].

TRAINING CYCLE "The Imams, Ambassadors of Democracy". 2013

Düsseldorf Police Prefecture, German-Muslim Mosque Foundation, Centre for Political Education of the Land.

Through this specific initiative, police officers trained 44 imams in May 2013, providing them with advice so that their role as interlocutors in the religious sphere would allow them to embody religious authority among their believers without neglecting the transmission of democratic values.

As an added value, the main actors in prevention are the representatives of the Muslim faith, who must undoubtedly be at the forefront of the fight against violent extremism.

The initiative was devised by three imams in search of a response to their concern about the increasingly common expression of radical interpretations of Islam among their community's younger parishioners [69].

HAYAT. Germany. 2011- Present

Federal Office for Migration and Refugees.

Hayat's proposal is centred on offering psychological assistance and advice to the families of radicalised individuals at different levels: the way to proceed, the information to be transmitted to the intelligence services, or, in the case of those who continue to be in contact with their children in one of the theatres of operations, the learning of basic concepts in the Islamist language to refute arguments or encourage the destruction of these during these communications.

The experts who initiated this project in 2011 conceived it as a team of interlocutors capable of providing assistance to each and every one of the actors involved in the radicalization of a young person [69].

SUMMARY	This initiative has to do with the recording of cases of racist crimes (racist profiling, racist speech, racist desecrations & vandalisms, racist discrimination and racist violence) and filing criminal complaint reports to the Prosecutors for Racist Crimes who almost always launch criminal investigations with ultimate scope to discourage and prevent discrimination.
GEOGRAPHICAL AREA	Greece
ORGANISATION	Greek Helsinki Monitor (GHM)
TARGET GROUP	General public Authorities
APPROACH	Awareness raising and prevention
PRACTICES/ ACTIVITIES	Activities / methods: Surveys traditional, electronic, on line, and social media to spot potential racist crimes; in few cases racist crimes are directly reported to GHM and become public after complaints were failed.
RESULTS	Tackle social polarization and deliver alternative narratives against discrimination and racism. It helped overcome the underreporting and highlight the absence of an effective complaint's mechanism that led to very few cases reaching the trial stage and even fewer ending with irrevocable convictions.

Raising awareness among local actors. Alexandroupoli.

The city of Alexandroupoli has become a point of entry for refugees and migrants who wish to reach other European cities. These arrivals combined with the economic crisis had led to a rise in xenophobia and extremist anti-migrant movements. The city has therefore recognised the necessity of working with professionals and young people in order to alleviate the negative impact of extremist discourses at a local level, by enabling them to better understand the phenomenon and become more resilient. Awareness-raising sessions were organised within the municipal departments as well as in schools. A methodology for an educational approach through preventive actions targeting young people and citizens has been developed [124].

NARRATIONS FROM MUSEUM TO MUSEUM

TYPE	Initiative
SUMMARY	Narrations from Museum to Museum is an arts project where participants create artwork on the basis of their interpretation of existing ones; a process that enables multifaceted perspectives and cultural discoveries. The goal of the project is also to stimulate a positive process of integration, a sense of belonging and self-esteem, as well as to encourage curiosity for the common cultural heritage. The challenges are numerous: continuity, given that there is a rotation between groups of migrants, and the very situation participants are in: teenager migrants living without parents nor families, are however the most important ones. This initiative started in 2012 [126].
GEOGRAPHICAL AREA	Rome

CANTIERI METICCI THE REFUGEE THEATRE COMPANY

TYPE	Project
SUMMARY	The initial aim in setting up the theatre group was to create a space in which to discuss and re-frame traditional artistic forms of expression, reflecting the complex challenges that arise from encounters with other cultures and visions of the world. Central to this new artistic project was the desire to reflect the increasing heterogeneity of local and global society through the active involvement of migrants and refugees, by giving voice to their languages and personal stories. This solidified into a direct goal of developing new (inter)cultural practices [128]. This project started in 2013.
GEOGRAPHICAL AREA	Bologna
ORGANISATION	Cantieri Meticci
TARGET GROUP	Italian citizens and migrants
APPROACH	Intercultural
PRACTICES/ ACTIVITIES	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>▪ Theatre workshops. The participants in these workshops created new theatre pieces by taking inspiration from their own stories and experiences.</li> <li>▪ These theatre workshops facilitated the development of a core 'working group' of actors (over 50 people from different countries including Afghanistan, Belgium, Cameroon, China, Cote d'Ivoire, Ghana, Iran, Morocco, Nigeria, Pakistan, RDC, Russia, Sierra Leone, Syria and Somalia), which evolved into what is now known as Cantieri Meticci.</li> <li>▪ The group has since recruited many new members and has maintained many of its core members, ensuring stability and continuity.</li> <li>▪ In 2013 it registered formally as an association named Cantieri Meticci, and since then the numbers of activities available and regular participants have soared.</li> <li>▪ More recently, the range of activities has multiplied through the creation of Quartieri Teatrali (Neighbourhood Theatres), which aim to stimulate intercultural dialogue and foster inter-group relations at neighbourhood level. These theatres run workshops that target students, teenagers, unaccompanied minors and elderly people.</li> <li>▪ Workshops are delivered in refugee reception centres in the urban area of Bologna which focus on acting and</li> </ul> dramaturgy techniques. These workshops were aimed at providing participants with the tools and knowledge to express and share, through artistic language and practice, their own feelings and life histories [128].

RESULTS	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>▪ The organisation has produced a series of theatre pieces, some of which have received national and international recognition and prizes. All these pieces were constructed around such themes as encounters with 'the other', feelings of loss, experiences of being uprooted and intercultural challenges (eg. with cohabitation and communication).</li> <li>▪ Company members have participated in transnational European projects and networks, while maintaining their local roots through the setting up of several workshops at neighbourhood level (in refugee reception centres, schools and other public spaces).</li> <li>▪ Participants' confidence levels have notably improved as a result of involvement with the company, as well as their language and creative skills and their abilities to form relationships with people of different cultural backgrounds [128].</li> </ul>

REDESIGN OUR CITY
TYPE	Project
SUMMARY	The main purpose of the project was to share a reflection on how a city can be welcoming starting from different points of view, becoming contaminated and finding a meeting point starting from very different life experiences At presence of educators, teachers and a representative of the Municipality, students and migrants discussed on the themes of migrations and social inclusion. Using a multidiscipline approach, the participants tried to design and to define the characteristics of a welcoming community/city. In particular, the participants were divided in small groups composed by students, migrants and educators of Sprar Project. Each group discussed starting from a question: "Imagine you are a person (Italian or foreigners) that arrive in Treviso without any point of reference. What do you need to feel comfortable?" At the end, each group shared its project to the other group. Thanks to the team support, all the participants had jointly decided the essential services that a community needs to be a welcoming place for every citizen. The project involved 42 middle class students and 8 beneficiaries of local Sprar Project [76].

APERTURA DI CORRIDOI UMANITARI (OPENING OF HUMANITARIAN CORRIDORS)

TYPE	Project
SUMMARY	The project has opened corridors to Italy from Lebanon (from Morocco and Ethiopia) with the arrival in Italy of many thousands of asylum seekers, mostly Syrian.

	It represented the example of a "Best Practice "with a rapid reduction of immigration related problems - a legal and safe access route and an alternative to the methodologies used in Europe, concerning immigrants for humanitarian reasons and for associated reasons, which have often been faced with unrealistic improvisations, lack of coordination and inconclusiveness in the interventions, with treatments often inhuman and with signatures of appeals and controversies but with no results. The project started in Italy in December 2015 and renewed in 2017. Similar initiatives "Opening of humanitarian corridors" have been activated by similar Associations in France, Belgium and Andorra [76].
GEOGRAPHICAL AREA	Italy
ORGANISATION	Agreement between the Community of Sant'Egidio, the Federation of Evangelical Churches in Italy (FCEI), the Waldensian Table and the Italian Government.
TARGET GROUP	Refugees
APPROACH	Inclusion
PRACTICES/ ACTIVITIES	Avoiding the journeys of refugees with the boats of death in the Mediterranean, countering the business of smugglers and traffickers of people, granting a legal entry on the Italian territory with a humanitarian visa, with subsequent submission of the asylum application [76].
RESULTS	The positive results achieved, despite the well-known difficulties of the dramatic problems of emigration, have favoured the acceleration of the process of integration of assisted immigrants and also of having found the support and the consent of public opinion and of having often silenced xenophobic minorities in the host country [76].

'RISCRIVERE LA MIA STORIA – REWRITING MY STORY'

TYPE	Practice under the project FAIR [134] [135]
SUMMARY	Prison settings play a powerful role in the recruitment and radicalisation of persons to violent extremism. Youth are at stage in life where they try to find their place in the world. When youth are in conflict with the law, it becomes even more challenging to build an identity that can embrace values of positive citizenship. Often, negative personal grievances can easily resonate with the narrative of violent extremism, increasing the chances that an individual will embrace such ideologies. The practice aims to allow for greater self-awareness among youth in conflict with the law and for them to re-elaborate their personal narratives and grievances. This is done in order to tackle some of the pull factors (such as sense of victimisation, disfranchisement and lack of belonging) that could lead youth to join extremist ideologies.
GEOGRAPHICAL AREA	Turin and Firenze, Italy
ORGANISATION	Fondazione Nuovo Villaggio del Fanciullo
TARGET GROUP	Youth, pupils, students Prison, probation, judicial practitioners
APPROACH	Intervention
PRACTICES/ ACTIVITIES	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>▪ Encounter with Ms Valeria Collina, mother of Youssef Zaghba, a young Italian-Moroccan man involved in the 2017 London Bridge terrorist attack. During the encounter, Ms Collina shares her story and her son’s journey to radicalisation to violent extremism, his failed attempt to join ISIS in order to stimulates empathic listening, deep reflection, and a moment of confrontation on the process of radicalisation.</li> <li>▪ A series of 10 sessions of 2 hours each: Practitioners encouraged a selected group of youth in conflict with the law to reflect on their own values and how they identify themselves as well as their main goals and dreams upon release from prison. The sessions covered the following exercises:             <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>○ Use one word to describe yourself.</li> <li>○ List your top 10 values, pick the 5 most important ones and describe why they are important to you.</li> <li>○ Reflection and discussion on how to live in line with personal values and why that is important.</li> <li>○ List 10 adjectives that describe you and which of these make you unique.</li> </ul> </li> </ul>

They were then asked to make a vision board/collage of these images and be able to use the vision board as a tool to narrate themselves.</li> <li>○ Music and writings: Other youth who felt they had other artistic inclinations such as writing and art were encouraged to use those as well.</li> </ul> <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>▪ Final session: During the final session, youth had the opportunity to self-narrate, this time rewriting new endings to their stories. A meeting was organised with Ms Collina and youth from civil society organisations. Youth showcased their artistic work and elaborated on these new narratives in a context of mutual listening, free of judgment and prejudice.</li> </ul>

RESPECT.LU

TYPE	Project
SUMMARY	Hate speech has become a major problem in society today. Debates on current political and societal issues are increasingly held on the internet and social networks. These exchanges and discussions are polarising, whereas they should remain objective and not increase hostilities. Although freedom of expression is a fundamental value of our societies, it is regularly overstepped. The trend is clearly increasing: in Luxembourg, the police investigated more than 50 cases in this context in 2019 compared to 20 in 2018. Elements of "Hate-Speech" that can be prosecuted are: It must be an incitement to hatred or violence, concerning a natural or legal person, a group or a community, who are discriminated against because of one or more elements and this incitement to hatred or violence must be concretised by words, texts, etc. The present project is inspired by an Austrian programme of the non-profit organisation "Neustart", which has developed an adapted intervention offer as a rational and socially constructive response to this problem.

	The aim of the project is to make a contribution to counteracting further fragmentation of society and thereby contribute to greater integration of different groups in society [137].
GEOGRAPHICAL AREA	Luxembourg
ORGANISATION	Ministère de la Famille, de l'Intégration et à la Grande Région

TILFLYTTING OG REKRUTTERING FRA UTLANDET (Migration and recruitment from abroad)

TYPE	Project
SUMMARY	The project intends to attract new citizens to the county to mitigate the long terms effect of outmigration in Nordland county. In 2011 Nordland experienced for the first time a small population growth due to immigration and today the labour market in Nordland is dependent on workers coming from other countries. Beside the focus on attracting workers the in-migration project also support a holistic inclusion of the migrants already arrived in Nordland County. This includes supporting civil society organisations working with integration in the municipalities. It has become clear that everything happening outside work is of high importance for people wanting to reside on a long-term basis. By being included in the local community through engagement in e.g. the sports association gives a sense of belonging in a different way than having a regular work. Nordland county sport association have a funding programme where local sport associations can apply for financial support to make sports activities aimed at integrating newly arrived migrants. An introduction to sport associations and leisure time activities in Norway is also part of the introductory programme for refugees.

RESULTS	Beside of the individual impact the project had for status holders. The city of Amsterdam made an agreement with different companies in different sectors. Those companies agreed to supply suitable jobs, internships and training possibilities for status holders. Thereby in mind that the language level and personal situation is not the same as Dutch people [76].

DIAMANT
TYPE	Method [147]
SUMMARY	In early 2016, the Knowledge Platform for Integration and Society described thirteen practical examples that were developed and implemented in the Netherlands to prevent the radicalization of young Muslims. Six of these interventions have now been strengthened and transferred, so that other organisations or municipalities can also use them. One such intervention is DIAMANT by the Intercultural Participation and Integration Foundation (SIPI). This is one of the existing methods for strengthening young people's identity.

	This method helps young Muslims who are at greater risk of criminal behaviour or radicalisation due to identity conflicts. The Diamond Method aims to increase young people's self-confidence and goal orientation, to teach them how to deal with dual identities and intercultural conflicts and to bring or keep them in touch with Dutch society. The training strengthens the identity and resilience of young people in Dutch society. Training strengthens young people's identity and resilience.
GEOGRAPHICAL AREA	The municipality of Amsterdam, the region of Amsterdam-Amstelland, the region of Zaanstad-Waterland, the region of Gooi and Vechtstreek, the region of Amersfoort and the municipalities of Almere and Dronten, The Netherlands
ORGANISATION	Stichting Interculturele Participatie en Integratie (SIPI)
TARGET GROUP	Young people (12-24 years old)
APPROACH	Method
PRACTICES/ ACTIVITIES	The training is conducted by certified Diamond coaches with pedagogical backgrounds who have followed a two-year course. The skills are taught in four parts over three months. The first part contains Turning Point training in which young people work on developing their identity and accepting people who think differently from them. Turning Point makes them stronger and more self-aware. During the second part of Diamant, young people work on independent thinking and decision making. In one task they come into contact with dissidents, among other things. The third part focuses on dealing with conflict. The young people learn about intercultural conflict management and practice conflict skills
RESULTS	DIAMANT exists since 2010 and has been implemented from a voluntary and forced context in the municipalities of Amsterdam, The Hague, Rotterdam, Dronten, Zeist, Culemborg and Almere, among others. More than 500 young people have already been trained with the DIAMANT method. The method was scientifically investigated in 2013 within the EU project SAFIRE. This is a research project on 'designation and responses to radicalisation'. This research shows that intervention has a positive effect on young people's self-confidence and trust in others, focus, empathy and participation. A large number of participants have training, jobs or internships and a wider network after the training. Young people have a positive social identity and identification. This method counters social isolation and eliminates feelings of relative deprivation (this is the subjective dissatisfaction caused by comparing their own position with the situation of others). Finally, there has been an increase in the number of participants who indicated that they could handle intercultural conflicts well after the training.

TYPE	Practice [148] [149] [150]
SUMMARY	The purpose of the Radicalisation Contact and Advisory Point (MAR) is to provide support for volunteers and professionals regarding both general questions about radicalisation and specific questions about individual cases.

APPROACH TO RADICALIZATION, EXTREMISM AND POLARIZATION 2018-2022
(Aanpak radicalisering, extremisme en polarisatie 2018-2022)

TYPE	Approach [151]
SUMMARY	In the Netherlands, and therefore also in Rotterdam, there are sometimes tensions between population groups, radicalisation of individuals and groups and even threats of extremism and terrorist violence. Together with numerous organisations and partners in the city, Rotterdam wants to combat polarisation and radicalisation in Rotterdam society and to combat (potentially) ideological violent behaviour.
GEOGRAPHICAL AREA	Rotterdam, The Netherlands
ORGANISATION	Rotterdam City Council
TARGET GROUP	Diverse.
APPROACH	Three approaches are distinguished: 1. To prevent polarization. 2. To prevent the Rotterdammers from becoming radicalised. 3. To fight extremism.
PRACTICES/ ACTIVITIES	There are four pillars within the 2018-2022 approach, each with different activities. 1. Depolarization and reduction of tensions in society 2. To increase the resistance of (vulnerable) groups in Rotterdam against radicalization, extremism and polarization 3. Promoting the expertise of professionals and volunteers. Not only do they learn to recognize polarization, radicalization and extremism, there are also training courses on what you can do yourself 4. Person-oriented approach aimed at de-radicalizing people and stopping radical behaviour (disconnection). In this regard, they make available training and information courses.

ACTION PLAN SLOTERVAART COUNTERING RADICALISATION (Actieplan Slotervaart Het tegengaan van radicalisering)

TYPE	Plan [152] [153]
SUMMARY	The municipality of Slotervaart has sought to develop a preventative response with the key objectives of stimulating reflection on radicalism and its consequences and preventing youth from becoming involved in radical groups. A
GEOGRAPHICAL AREA	Slotervaart (neighborhood), Amsterdam
ORGANISATION	Municipality of Slotervaart
TARGET GROUP	Young
APPROACH	In its preventive approach, the district wants to focus on young people (Muslims) who are susceptible to radical ideas. The timely detection and identification of radical views makes influencing and counteracting these views even more promising. Slotervaart's Action Plan for Combating Radicalisation extensively addresses the background to the issue and explains the situation at Slotervaart. It then discusses the objectives, principles and measures to implement the proposed new approach.
PRACTICES/ ACTIVITIES	The measures included in the action plan focus on raising awareness among young people and their parents, developing skills to increase resilience and offering targeted support to parents. The measures also target important intermediaries, for example, supporting mosques and imams in dealing with radicalised young people and counteracting radicalisation. The other measures relate to the facilitation of various activities in educational and youth facilities and the promotion of interaction between the population and philosophical groups. Key measures: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>▪ Raising consciousness amongst (Muslim) youth and their social environment of the dangers of radicalisation processes;</li> <li>▪ Facilitating a development of competences which improves the resilience of youth and their parents against radicalisation; • Supporting parents in raising youth;</li> <li>▪ Supporting Mosques and Imams in coping with radicalising youth and countering radicalism;</li> <li>▪ Ensuring an effective alert and response network to respond to dynamics of radicalisation;</li> <li>▪ Facilitating the collaboration between public schools and youth provision;</li> <li>▪ Promoting interaction between different groups of people and religions.</li> </ul>

RADICX

TYPE	Method
SUMMARY	RADICX is a set of guidelines developed in the Netherlands for teachers and school staff to recognise signs of radicalisation at an early stage.
GEOGRAPHICAL AREA	The Netherlands.
ORGANISATION	-
TARGET GROUP	Teachers, school psychologists, other school personnel as stakeholders involved. School pupils, youth at risk of becoming radicalised
APPROACH	Risk Assessment and monitoring tool. Operational.
PRACTICES/ ACTIVITIES	Radicx comprises six steps during which concerns related to four domains (behaviour, contacts, cultural/religious expressions and political/ideological expressions) are raised, inventorised and discussed by school professionals and a suitable action is agreed upon. Radicx is part of an approach to identifying and assessing warning signs integrated into a guide explaining the process radicalisation, relevant factors and indicators [154].

ASYSTENTKI MIĘDZYKULTUROWE W SZKOLACH (INTERCULTURAL ASSISTANTS AT SCHOOLS)

TYPE	Assistance
SUMMARY	There is a group of intercultural assistants working at Warsaw's schools. Initially, they were only employed by NGOs (the first male and female assistants were employed in 2010 by the Association for Legal Intervention, later also by the Foundation for the Development of Social Diversity and the Vox Humana Foundation). Nowadays, such assistants are sometimes employed by schools (e.g. Primary School No. 58 in Warsaw's Targówek or the school in Mroków, located near Wolka Kosowska, not far from Warsaw, where a large group of immigrants work, mainly from Vietnam and China) Assistants who support schools, children and parents in mutual communication by improving communication and understanding between the school, migrant parents and pupils. ORGANISATION	NGOs, employers at schools
TARGET GROUP	Foreign pupils
APPROACH	Assistance
PRACTICES/ ACTIVITIES	Depending on the needs, assistants can spend their time at one or more schools. The PMF's preferred working method is for assistants to hold a regular on-duty position at one or two schools (2 days a week each), as well as an off-duty day when the assistant is at the disposal of other schools which have reported such a need [76].

TYPE	Method
SUMMARY	This working method is used in a country where presence of a foreign child is rare and pupils don't have a wide experience of cultural diversity. The dolls are a substitute for the presence of a person from another culture. They symbolize a guest - at the same time, they create space to "practise" openness to real people. The Foundation's trainers work with preschoolers, children under 10 years of age, using a method that allows them to "visit" different countries of the world where refugees and migrants come from in a fun way, to talk about these countries in the language of children, to arouse interest in cultural diversity among these children, but also to provide difficult information: about the fact that in some countries it is dangerous, children are at risk and need help. Started in 2008 [76].

SUMMARY	The trainers at the Foundation for Freedom have been running classes at the common room of the centre for asylum-seekers in Targówek in Warsaw for several years (the centre is intended for single mothers with children). The classes are held regularly, 3 times a week for 4 hours. The work conducted at the common room has a multilevel impact on the residents of the centre. First of all, it occupies children and offers them various activities. Secondly, it gives their mothers some time for themselves. Thirdly, it teaches children pro-social behaviours and helps them cope with trauma. Fourthly, various excursions and outings are

ZARZĄDZANIE INTEGRACJA IMIGRANTÓW W WYMIARZE LOKALNYM: PRZYKŁAD GDAŃSKA (MANAGING THE INTEGRATION OF MIGRANTS WITH A LOCAL DIMENSION: THE EXAMPLE OF GDAŃSK)

TYPE	Tool
SUMMARY	In 2015, in response to the heated discussion on the place of migrants in society in Poland, the Mayor of Gdańsk Paweł Adamowicz established the first interdisciplinary and intersectoral immigrant integration model team in Poland. Its aim was to develop a Model of Immigrant Integration for Gdansk, which would direct and standardize the dispersed services provided by the city to foreigners, taking into account their perspective and needs, as well as increase the civic activity of migrants who chose Gdansk as their new home. The Immigrant Integration Model preparatory work was developed by a team consisting of officials, activists and foreigners themselves. It was composed of more than 140 people representing over 80 different entities. A group of over 20 immigrants, new residents of Gdansk, from various countries, also took part in the works. The Immigrant Integration Model was adopted by way of a resolution of the City Council in June 2016 [76].

TRAINING FOR STAFF OF PRIMARY AND SECONDARY SCHOOLS

TYPE	Project
SUMMARY	In response to the process of radicalisation and violent extremism that threatens public security, IBS has created an innovative approach that provides vital support for one of the main actors in prevention and countering radicalisation — the school community. Work with schools offers a great basis for further working with the entire local community (parents, local police, local government officials, social and street workers, etc.) forming a future multi-agency local collaboration task force [157].
GEOGRAPHICAL AREA	Poland
ORGANISATION	Institute of Social Safety (IBS)
TARGET GROUP	Educators / Academics
APPROACH	Multi-agency
PRACTICES/ ACTIVITIES	Training, counselling, legal assistance and developing a multi-agency approach.
RESULTS	For the last four years, IBS has trained staff at 80 primary and secondary schools across Poland: approximately 2 000 head teachers, teachers and administrative staff in total who work with approximately 22 000 students. 98 % of the trained school staff believe that the content provided by IBS is relevant for their work, and 90 % of teachers declare the training has helped them understand the phenomenon of radicalisation and detect some of its signs in schools [157].

PandPas (Pre and Post – Arrival Schemes) project

TYPE	Project
SUMMARY	The PandPAS project focused on post-arrival support for the integration of persons in need of international protection and aims at producing tools for the pre departure activities and pilot experiences for the inclusion and the active participation of migrants in the social within the hosting territories [165]. The project focused on refugees who had arrived in the 2015 - 2016 period, since they represented the most numerous - and by far the most vulnerable - migrant group in Slovenia. These individuals (mainly from Syria, Afghanistan, Iran, Iraq and Pakistan) were in need of as much assistance as possible. The project aimed to increase refugees' empowerment; capacity-build for host institutions and communities; improve social cohesion and solidarity; reduce xenophobia and radicalisation. A further expected impact was that the project would contribute to the improvement of policies and practices across Europe. Project funded by the AMIF programme. From 2017 to 2019 [166].
GEOGRAPHICAL AREA	Ljubljana and Maribor
ORGANISATION	Slovenian Migration Institute, Research Centre of the Slovenian Academy of Sciences and Arts
TARGET GROUP	Refugees, asylum seekers, local communities, researchers, cultural mediators
APPROACH	The project had its foundations in Italian, Croatian and Slovenian regions where big or medium migrant “hubs” are located. It adopted the Portuguese approach of “widespread welcoming and integration”, and used learnings from the Cypriot experience in social entrepreneurship for the inclusion of third-country nationals [166]
PRACTICES/ ACTIVITIES	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>▪ A collection of 10 pre-tested good practices;</li> <li>▪ Local Action Plans through the active involvement of refugees and of all social and institutional actors.</li> <li>▪ A social research on the perception, the needs and the expectations of refugees and asylum seekers;</li> <li>▪ A permanent forum of local European communities engaged in promoting the inclusion of refugees and asylum seekers;</li> <li>▪ A docu-video for legal and conscious migration in Europe, based on the stories directly narrated by refugees and based on their experience [165].</li> </ul>
RESULTS	The PandPAS project managed to mobilise local communities in Ljubljana and Maribor, and organised over 25 events with other actors in the field of asylum seeker and refugee inclusion. Through this, strong networks of solidarity were built, which are still in place today. Municipalities, schools, employment services, NGOs, music schools, libraries, sports associations and many other actors became better aware of and involved in the inclusion of migrants [166].

3.18.2.1. Prevent strategies

 Counter-terrorism strategy (CONTEST) 2018 [189]

Since 2003, the United Kingdom has had a strategy known as CONTEST, aimed at combating international terrorism. The strategy is divided into four main lines: (1) Prevent, which set out the framework for counter-radicalisation and everything that comes before engaging in terrorist activity; (2) Pursue, which detailed strategies to prevent and eliminate direct threats of terrorist attacks; (3) Protect, which dealt more specifically with border control, transport systems and, in general, all critical infrastructure; (4) Prepare, which aimed to strengthen the resilience of the UK and its population to possible terrorist attacks.

METACARDS

TYPE	Training programme
SUMMARY	Matrix cards have been specifically developed to help practitioners fully engage and explore key issues with young people around the “Prevent programme” [193].
GEOGRAPHICAL AREA	Oldhan area, Greater Manchester, England
ORGANISATION	Positive steps [194]

<sup>21</sup> One of the factors that can contribute to vulnerability included in the Prevent Duty Guidance is the identity confusion.

TARGET GROUP	Young people and adults.
APPROACH	MetaCards are a set of pictorial cards founded on Neuro-Linguistic principles. Trainings with cards are done in schools, colleges and with local authority staff, including youth workers. The cards help us explore the beliefs, values and intentions, create new meanings and develop new narratives
PRACTICES/ACTIVITIES	There are 17 cards designed to engage young people in dialogue about themselves, their community and the world. The cards use Islamic imagery to enable young people to discuss their own beliefs and values. This can help them to share the different meanings relevant to their lives [195].

The main objectives of the GOT Project are:

1. To counter intolerance and extremism through independent and critical thinking.
2. To facilitate knowledge and understanding of the non-violent message of the Islamic faith.
3. To reduce prejudice and discrimination between all cultures, faiths and creeds.
4. To promote integrated and cohesive communities.

To do this, it has four different programs: GOT Schools and Colleges (11-19-year-old), GOT Community, GOT Youth & Community, and GOT 'Understanding Islam' [199].

Cypher 7 A.D 2012-2014

The goal of this initiative was to deliver counter communication among communities and youngsters through creative online content in which Islam can be understood as a force for positive personal, social and political change.

The Unity Initiative. 2016

The Unity Initiative (TUI) was a specialist Interventions Consultancy with the primary aim of dismantling reactionary absolutism, tackling violent extremism and promoting pluralism through the use of a pioneering, legitimate and unique methodology which combines sanctioned counter-narratives, behavioural and linguistic sciences as well as providing supportive mechanisms to vulnerable individuals and communities. The Unity Initiative worked closely with London Probation Services, Prison Services and Home Office (OSCT).

Approach focused on exit strategies and training for first line practitioners with a wide target audience including prison/probation/judicial, practitioners, violent extremists and youth/pupils/students [200].

3.19.2. CITIZENS AGORA

CITIZENS AGORA

TYPE	Tool
SUMMARY	PRACTICES is an EU-funded project in which more than 20 project partners are engaged in prevention and de-radicalization in European cities. It aims to better understand radicalization processes of individuals and societal conditions of anti-democratic extremism and to develop, test and evaluate measures against them. The close exchange between project partners from over 10 countries is also intended to improve international cooperation and test good practices for their applicability in different cities. Citizens' Agora is one part of the whole project. The activities carried out in Nice, Salzburg, Toulouse and Tunisia as early prevention activities foster inclusive citizenship and realize in a more or less creative way what we called "Citizens Agora" – thus a place where opinions can be expressed and exchanged and where dialogue takes place. 10 different activities in Austria, France and Tunisia were evaluated – all of them took place on

	the local level and were organized by institutions that participate in the project PRACTICIES The idea of Citizens Agora in the project PRACTICIES is to install and use public social spaces for inclusive citizenship participation and citizenship education in order to prevent anti-democratic extremism and violent radicalization at an early stage [201] [202].
GEOGRAPHICAL AREA	France (Nice, Toulouse), Austria (Salzburg), Tunisia among others
ORGANISATION	Academic institutions and city administrations or social workers. PRACTICIES project participants.
TARGET GROUP	Young people, immigrants or other Employees in the field of social or youth work, teachers, NGOs, policy makers, associations of all kinds, politicians and an interested public.
APPROACH	Democratic dialogue, participation and inclusive citizenship. Research (evaluation of early prevention measures against violent radicalisation) and transfer (handbook)
PRACTICES/ ACTIVITIES	Activities divided into 4 modules [201]: Module 1: exchange of views and perspectives between different groups (possible interventions: city-dialogue, inter-generational and intercultural city walks, socio-spatial community and youth work or other). Module 2: making visible the needs and opinions of young people (possible interventions: public speech: speaker’s corner, poetry slam or other). Public space is offered to express one’s opinions on different issues and/or to work in alternative settings in order to make expression easier and to overcome hurdles for participation. Module 3: Inclusion and participation of young people in local decisions (possible interventions: training/workshops for youth participation and participation of other target groups; youth parliaments, round tables with politicians etc.). Module 4: joint action with social and educational structures. It is about building relationships with schools and cultural centres to improve the impact of these actions by training teachers and intervening with families in schools.

DESISTANCE- PRO

TYPE	Tool – Software
SUMMARY	The Desistance PRO tool is a hetero-evaluated grid that can identify the needs of the youths the “jihadist” discourse offered to fill (and sometimes transformed it). It also offers alternative involvements from elements coming from their own radicalization trajectory, and verifies and measures their level of desistance from their level of resiliency (towards their primary needs) [202] [204].
GEOGRAPHICAL AREA	Europe
ORGANISATION	PRACTICIES project participants.
TARGET GROUP	Social workers, young people
APPROACH	Software designed to help social workers to identify individuals at risk of being radicalised and those who are already been through the radicalisation process. The software can be used to determine the needs and the best way to proceed in the radicalisation process.
PRACTICES/ ACTIVITIES	The social agent carries out an evaluation by means of a series of questions with 6 possible answers about the individual himself to which a score is assigned. Once this is done, the score allows the determination of ideals, needs and anxieties, alternatives and the necessary support for the individual to evolve.

SUMMARY	The CoPPRA (Community Policing Preventing Radicalisation & Terrorism) manual for trainers is an example of a more general and widely used tool for training and awareness raising among community police officers across the EU. <sup>94</sup> It was developed by the Belgian Federal Police in cooperation with police agencies from 11 EU member states. CoPPRA also provides explanations on what radicalisation is, its stages and factors, followed by indicators signifying risk, practical examples and the role of community policing in recognising these. ## 3.19.8. MINT

MINT - Mentoring for Integration (of third country national children affected by migration)

TYPE	Mentoring Methodological Framework
SUMMARY	Migrant children and youth are especially vulnerable to social exclusion. MINT aimed at empowering refugee and migrant children - as well as European youth - to engage in new integration activities. By using an innovative mentoring programme, the project contributed to building more inclusive societies in Romania, Poland, the Czech Republic, and Slovenia. The project was an action learning and innovation programme, of which a contextualised, adapted, and tested mentoring model was an important output. This complex programme provided newly arrived migrant children with support, advice, and

	friendship in the form of mentors, in order to facilitate easier integration. Additionally, it contributed to the improvement of their linguistic and social skills and amplified their voices to communicate their needs (to stakeholders such as their local peers, teachers, and local and national authorities). The project helped to translate EU integration policy into concrete results at both the individual and community level, by providing early support to recently arrived children and promoting their active participation and social inclusion. At the same time, it supported MS governments, local authorities and civil society organisations engaged in the complex process of fostering integration. Co-funded by the European Union's Asylum, Migration and Integration Fund From 2019-2021 [206].
GEOGRAPHICAL AREA	Hungary, Romania, Poland, Czech Republic, Slovenia
ORGANISATION	Terre des hommes Hungary, Terre des hommes Romania, Ocalenie Foundation, Organization for Aid to Refugees, Slovene Philanthropy

It is available in English, Czech, Polish, Romanian and Slovene;</li> <li>▪ 2 mentoring cycles were organised in each project country, each lasting 6-9 months;</li> <li>▪ 4 child-friendly videos about national and cultural specificities of the host countries are now available in English, Arabic, Czech, Polish, Russian, Slovene;</li> <li>▪ 10 child- and youth-led awareness-raising videos contributed to raising awareness of the general public on the realities – be they positive or challenging - lived by migrant children and youth;</li> <li>▪ 11 local events were organised to build more cohesive local communities;</li> <li>▪ 4 national advocacy conferences were organised to positively influence local and national policies;</li> </ul>

	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>1 final international dissemination event was organised, for dissemination of the project results and tools.</li> </ul> According to data collected from migrant children, their families and local youth, the mentoring programme has had a positive impact on children’s self-esteem. ## 3.20. EU PROJECTS

This section presents some European projects of interest, both in terms of integration of immigrants and prevention of radicalisation.

3.20.1. Migration

3.20.1.1. EASYRIGHTS

The easyRights “Working Towards and Inclusive Future For All” project is working to develop a co-creative ecosystem in conjunction with AI technology, in which different actors belonging to local governance systems can cooperate to increase the quantity and quality of public (welfare) services available to migrants (H2020).

Bringing together migrants, the public sector and private organisations, easyRights will develop a platform to provide personalised, context-aware information to its users, taking into account background, demographics and language skills.

easyRights is a consortium, comprising fourteen partners from seven different countries: Austria, Denmark, Greece, Italy, Norway, Spain and the UK. The pilot platform is being developed in four of these countries [207].

Project goals:

The specific aims of the project are to improve the personalisation and context-awareness of existing services through the easyRights platform, to empower the prospective beneficiaries of existing services to secure better access to and make better use of opportunities, as well as to make use of hackathons to enable the co-creation of service support solutions using easyRights technology. It is expected that these solutions will facilitate the assimilation of migrants, contributing to happier and more successful lives in their new communities.

The objectives within these aims are:

1. the improvement of language skills;
2. the enhancement of communication;
3. the increased accessibility of information;
4. the development of a shared understanding;
5. the better connection of migrant support systems.

Main activities:

1. codifying and structuring project results into an innovative ‘Mediation Grammar’ designed to become a new international standard;
2. establishing, managing and monitoring eight ‘Quadruple Helix communities’ in the project pilots, tackling the simplification of eight distinct procedures (in Greece, for example, the two procedures involved are the certification of nationality and the certification of residence; in the UK the focus is on inclusion of migrants in public consultation and creating a standardised English learning system across the city);
3. the organisation of eight hackathon events (one every 12 months; two per country) in the four pilot locations of Larissa (Greece), Malaga (Spain), Birmingham (UK), and Palermo (Italy);

4. delivering personalised and contextualised ICT services to the project pilots and their participants;
5. evaluation of the policy learnings and impacts as well as their replication potential [208].

3.20.1.2. IMMERSE

Integration mapping of refugee and migrant children (H2020)

IMMERSE main goal is to define a new generation of indicators on the integration and socio-educational inclusion of refugee and migrant children in Europe.

IMMERSE aims to incorporate all relevant stakeholders (children and their families, researchers, NGOs, policymakers, educators or learning institutions) in the co-creation and validation of a dashboard of indicators. This will lead to data that best reflects the particular needs and expectations of the relevant stakeholders.

IMMERSE researchers will collect and monitor data related to the selected indicators from children age 6-18 years old in 6 European countries: Belgium, Germany, Greece, Ireland, Italy and Spain. IMMERSE will develop an innovative and ICT-supported solution to carry out data collection (onboarding platform) and data visualization and analysis (dashboard of indicators) [209].

3.20.1.3. INTEGRATED

Promoting meaningful integration of third Country National Children to Education (AMIF)

The general objective of the action is to “Strengthen the successful participation of newly arrived third-country national children in education and to contribute to the combatting of discrimination against third-country national children in the educational environment in Greece, Italy & Spain, and the EU in general”.

This will be realized by:

- Raising participation in education and the rate of attainment among third-country national children/youth
- Supporting the academic performance of secondary education third-country national pupils
- Enhancing the competences of teachers, school heads and staff
- Facilitating and promoting the involvement of third-country national parents in their children’s school life
- Improving the knowledge of third-country national pupils and their parents on the educations systems
- Maintaining mother tongue & culture knowledge of third-country national pupils
- Fostering exchange of experience & promote educational support model(s)
- Raising public awareness on the role of education in promoting inclusive societies.

Promoting increased attention to diversity and inclusion in policy planning in education [210].

3.20.1.4. WELCOME

Reception, Management and Integration of Third Country Nationals (H2020).

WELCOME is an EU funded project which aims to research and develop intelligent technologies for support of the reception and integration of migrants and refugees in Europe. WELCOME will offer a personalized and psychologically and socially competent solution for both migrants and refugees and public administrations. It will develop immersive and intelligent services, in which embodied intelligent multilingual agents will act as dedicated personalized assistants of migrants and refugees in contexts of registration, orientation, language teaching, civic education, and social and societal inclusion [211].

Activities: support of migrants and refugees, language teaching, personalized embodied conversation agents, social and societal inclusion, decision support multilingual, language technologies, virtual/augmented reality, knowledge processing

3.20.2. Prevention of radicalization

3.20.2.1. IMPACT EUROPE

IMPACT Europe is developing an evaluation toolkit that draws on a state-of-the-art knowledge database on radicalisation factors, existing counter violent radicalisation interventions, and approaches to evaluating these interventions [212] (FP7)

Goals:

- Effectiveness of programmes to tackle violent radicalisation and extremism
- Evidence good practice
- Knowledge & understanding

Toolkit. In addition, they have developed a set of evaluation tools for professionals working in the field of combating violent extremism [213].

3.20.2.2. Youth work against violent radicalisation

Youth work against violent radicalisation (2017, Erasmus +)

Goals:

- To research and showcase positive ways and initiatives in which youth violent radicalisation can be addressed and prevented, and
- To examine how we can strengthen the role of different actors, in an attempt to compile a long-term strategy about youth work against violent radicalisation.

Toolkit: Through the project a card game has been created that represents various factors that form the perceptions and minds of young people and that could influence them in the process of their own radicalization [214] [215].

3.20.2.3. PRACTITCIES

The partnership against violent radicalisation in cities project is a European network composed by:

- National and regional institutions and cities responsible for designing and implementing policies to prevent radicalisation leading to violence.
- Academic, researchers and experts responsible for developing multidisciplinary approaches to tackle radicalisation leading to violence.
- Practitioners, stakeholders, representative of civil society, schools, families and associations with varied experiences in the fight against radicalization leading to violence.
- IT Companies specialized in the development of software that will enable both the collection of data and the production of control and narrative tools to prevent all forms of radicalization leading to violence.

This initiative was born in 2015 as a response to the need to involve professionals from different fields of knowledge (humanities, information sciences, political sciences) in the search for an effective analysis of the threat posed in Europe by the representation of any form of extremism.

Goals:

- To facilitate the exchange of know-how on intervention practices, policy recommendations and practical solutions;
- To promote global research on radicalisation;
- To develop innovative intervention Tools;
- To create a dynamic of dialogue and cooperation between social and academic actors;
- To create an urban network based on practical cooperation [216].

3.20.2.4. MINDb4ACT

Mapping, Identifying and Developing skills and opportunities in operating environments to co-create innovative, ethical and effective Actions to tackle radicalization leading to violent extremism (H2020).

To analyse the design, impact and constraints of current Countering Violent Extremism policies, the project will focus on four dimensions:

- Mind the problem
- Mind the strategy
- Mind the capacities
- Mind the practices

Within the project they also offer different courses:

- Module 1: Radicalization as relational phenomena and radicalization in prison
- Module 2: Legal Aspects of Preventive Procedures and Agency
- Module 3: Digital Forensics
- Module 4: Early Intervention and Awareness at Local Level
- Module 5: Violent radicalization, a restorative approach
- Module 6: Radicalisation in School and Online [217].

3.20.2.5. The belonging project

The Identity, Belonging and Extremism (IBE) project is a media content-based project that is delivered in schools. The project is tailored to local needs and created in consultation with students, based on their requirements. It focuses on both online (digital resilience) and offline engagement [218]. The project was launched in 2018 and operates in the UK.

The project seeks to engage students on issues encountered in the online environment using an offline medium. Although the themes are generic, they are central to understanding radicalisation and extremism.

The project targets both mindset and behaviour. The majority of extremist narratives operate on three simple modes of engagement and understanding, revolving around:

- a sense of Identity
- a sense of belonging

3.20.2.6. LIASE II

LIASE II Local institutions against violent extremism II. (H2020) [219].

The project, led by Efus, has strengthened the network of local authorities mobilised to prevent violent radicalisation.

Among the results, it is worth highlighting the publication of these recommendations on prevention in the local area in a guide called Preventing and Fighting Radicalization at the Local Level [220].

The creation of this document as the conclusions of a project of such magnitude encourages the study of these experiences and facilitates the future implementation of programmes of a similar nature, which is a success insofar as it records the conclusions of the programme, expands knowledge in this area and allows European countries to advance with a concise guide towards the joint involvement of local institutions, which are so necessary in prevention.

3.20.2.7. TRIVALENT

Terrorism pReventlon Via rAdicalisation countEr-NarraTive, (H2020).

TRIVALENT project aims to a better understanding of root causes of the phenomenon of violent radicalisation in Europe, through a multidisciplinary analysis leading to a comprehensive approach, based on a firm commitment to respecting fundamental rights, promoting integration, cultural dialogue and fighting discrimination, in order to develop appropriate countermeasures, ranging from early detection methodologies to techniques of counter-narrative, involving LEAs together with academics, experts and civil society actors at local, national and European level, in collaboration also with communities of reference [221] [222].

TRIVALENT also aims to provide a toolbox for prevention.

3.20.2.8. LOUD

LOUD. Local young leader for inclusion (Erasmus+)

LOUD aims to foster inclusive environments for young people in order to prevent them from drifting into intolerance and extremist behaviours. It will strengthen local authorities' and young people's capacities to produce alternative narratives.

To date, 4 webinars have been held.

- Webinar 1
  - The role of alternative narratives in preventing discrimination, polarisation and radicalisation at the local level
  - What do successful alternative narrative campaigns look like?
  - Which actors should be involved and what is their role?
  - What are the benefits of this involvement and what would further collaboration look like?
- Webinar 2
  - How to design an alternative narrative campaign?
  - How to create messages that offer a positive alternative to discriminatory speeches?
- Webinar 3
  - How to create an effective campaign, reach the target audience and spread the message?
- Webinar 4
How to measure and evaluate an alternative narrative campaign? [223] [224]

3.20.2.9. BRIDGE

BRIDGE Building resilience to reduce polarisation and growing extremism (Internal Security Fund- Police, ISF-P).

The project aims to build local actors' awareness and capacities to reduce individual and collective vulnerability to radicalisation by mitigating polarisation. The project aims to develop local polarisation detection and management tools and assist local authorities to tackle tensions and social unrest, by promoting community-based initiatives for cooperation between different public services and private actors [225].

3.20.2.10. BRAVE

BRaVE Fair. Building Resilience Against Violent Extremism and Polarisation (H2020).

The BRaVE Fair brings together different innovative grassroots projects in the field of arts and sports-based interventions for channelling political frustration, particularly amongst youth, increasing the perception of commonalities and shared histories, and ultimately counteracting polarisation [226].

3.20.2.11. PAVE

PAVE. Preventing and Addressing Violent Extremism through Community Resilience (H2020).

PAVE aims to tackle the global issue of radicalisation by examining its root causes and driving factors. Based on a participatory and inter-regional approach, PAVE aims to advance evidence-based knowledge on violent extremism in the broader Middle East and North Africa (MENA) region and the Western Balkans, and to strengthen the capacity of policy-makers and community leaders for an effective prevention strategy between the European Union and its neighbourhood.

The research endeavour will encompass empirical studies and comparative analyses in selected municipalities [227].

3.20.2.12. CONNEKT

CONNEKT. Context of Extremism in MENA and Balkan Societies (H2020).

CONNEKT aims to explore the drivers of radicalisation and violent extremism among young people aged from 12 to 30 in eight countries: Bosnia and Herzegovina, Bulgaria, Egypt, Jordan, Kosovo, Morocco, North Macedonia, and Tunisia.

The project will map and establish interrelationships and specific significance of seven potential drivers within three different levels of analysis [228].

3.20.2.13. D.Rad

D.Rad D.Rad. DeRadicalisation in Europe and Beyond: Detect, Resolve, Integrate (H2020)

D.Rad is a comparative study of radicalisation and polarisation in Europe and beyond. It aims to identify the actors, networks, and wider social contexts driving radicalisation, particularly among young people in urban and peri-urban areas. D.Rad conceptualises this through the I-GAP spectrum (injustice-grievance-alienation-polarisation) with the goal of moving towards measurable evaluations of de-radicalisation programmes.

With the possibility of capturing the trajectories of seventeen nations and several minority nations, the project will provide a unique evidence base for the comparative analysis of law and policy as nation states adapt to new security challenges. The process of mapping these varieties and their link to national contexts will be crucial in uncovering strengths and weaknesses in existing interventions. Furthermore, D.Rad accounts for the problem that processes of radicalisation often occur in circumstances that escape the control and scrutiny of traditional national frameworks of justice. The participation of AI professionals in modelling, analysing and devising solutions to online radicalisation will be central to the project's aims [229].

3.21. EUROPEAN NETWORKS

RAN. Radicalisation Awareness Network, funded by the ISF-P (2011) [230].

The RAN is a network frontline practitioner who work daily with both those vulnerable to radicalisation and those who have already been radicalised.

In addition to finding a wide range of publications they have training for first line practitioners [231].

TERRA - A two-year Europe wide network-based prevention and learning project, funded by the European Commission, DG Home Affairs [232].

4. INTERNATIONAL

4.1. INTERNATIONAL

4.1.1. UNESCO conference: internet and the radicalization of youth: Preventing, Acting and Living Together

Building on existing initiatives, UNESCO and the Government of Quebec organised an international conference of high-level experts entitled "Internet and the radicalization of youth: Preventing, Acting and Living together". During the event, researchers, experts, civil society representatives as well as government officials gathered to identify innovative and collaborative projects at the national and international level, not only to prevent but to curb youth radicalization leading to violence [233].

4.1.2. UNESCO Chair in Prevention of Radicalisation and Violent Extremism

It ensures close cooperation among researchers and communities of practice in a comparative, multidisciplinary and north-south perspective [234].

The Chair set the following objectives:

- Identify, network and enhance cooperation between centres, structures of expertise and communities of practice in preventing radicalization, both in Canada and abroad;
- Provide a high level of expertise and develop innovative action research programs, as well as models based on evidence and best practices, to shape not only public policy but also radicalization and violent extremism prevention programs at the local, national and international levels;
- Support the capacity building of key stakeholders, particularly in research, in school and community settings, as well as online;
- Raise awareness, ensure visibility and transfer knowledge to the public and media.

In this sense this network includes the following practices and activities:

- Network and exchange meetings
- Annual reports
- Systematic review
- Projects

Activities:

1. Policy guidance. Development and implementation of the National Strategy on Countering Radicalization to Violence (2018) [235].
2. Promoting coordination and collaboration with a range of stakeholders to build and share knowledge, and to respond to local level realities and prevent radicalization to violence.
3. Funding, planning and coordinating research to better understand radicalization to violence and how best to counter it, and mobilizing research to front-line individuals working to prevent radicalization to violence.
4. Supporting interventions through the Canada Centre's Community Resilience Fund to provide financial support to initiatives that aim to prevent radicalization to violence in Canada [236].

One of the priorities set out in the national strategy concerns the support of different interventions. In this regard, some of the initiatives carried out can be named:

4.2.2. Calgary Re-Direct

Calgary Re-Direct gives a multidisciplinary approach that provides interventions with young people who are vulnerable to violent radicalization. Calgary Re-Direct is a partnership between the City of Calgary, Community and neighbourhood Services, the Calgary Police Service, and other professional partners [237].

4.2.3. Organisation for the Prevention of Violence

The Organization for the Prevention of Violence is an evidence-driven NGO engaged in the prevention of hate-motivated violence in Western Canada and located in Edmonton. Their current activities focus on community research, workshops, and the design of educational materials [238].

4.3. AUSTRALIA

4.3.1. Community Awareness Training (CAT) Manual. AUSTRALIA. 2018

Australian Multicultural Foundation

Geographical Area: Queensland, Western Australia, South Australia, Victoria, and New South Wales with representation from a wide range of age groups, employment and socioeconomic backgrounds.

The manual brings the knowledge, understanding and skills required for participants to be able to deliver information in the community about: recognising anti-social behaviours, including criminality, and processes that can lead to violent extremism, along with prevention strategies and where to go for support. The manual was designed following consultations with community groups, religious leaders, police and government to ensure that the contents and format remain relevant, practical and useful over time [239].

The manual is designed for Australian communities:

- to assist in building resilience;
- to increase awareness and understanding about processes of anti-social behaviours that can lead to forms of criminal activity including violent extremism using The Behavioural Indicators Model (Monash University);
- to promote an increased knowledge of strategies and activities which can help prevent individuals from engaging in anti-social behaviours that can also lead to violence.

The model is not specific to any one particular national, political, religious or ideological group and applies regardless of the ideology or motivation for radicalisation.

The training is delivered in two formats:

- a) as an information session for those people who want to increase their knowledge and understanding such as parents, friends, peers and mentors;
- b) a train the trainer session, for those who will be able to train others either formally or informally.

AMF has conducted Community Awareness Training program nationally to over 700 people in information sessions and 132 people in train the trainer sessions [240].

4.4. USA

4.4.1. Preventing terrorism

The United States through homeland security have a programme dedicated to the prevention of terrorism where programs focused on the prevention of radicalization can be found through.

- Community Awareness Briefing (CAB). 2008 [241]
  - Helps others to identify "exit ramps" on a person's path to radicalization before criminal activity occurs.
  - Use of case studies covering the spectrum of violent extremist groups to illustrate the radicalization and recruitment process, recruitment process and to identify vulnerabilities and points of intervention.
  - Presentation on radicalization and violent extremist recruitment designed to build awareness and understanding of violent extremism and to catalyse community efforts on prevention. The CAB has been presented to law enforcement, public safety officials, and directly to communities in multiple U.S. cities over the past few years. It often serves as a catalyst for community-driven CVE projects.
- Six intervention models.
  1. Training for Members of the Public
  2. Community-Led Resilience Building
  3. Law Enforcement Training
  4. Law Enforcement-Led Youth Resilience Building
  5. Regional Prevention Planning and Implementation
  6. Intervention Capabilities

4.4.2. American Muslim Civic Leadership Institute (AMCLI). California, USA.

AMCLI is a leadership development program committed to unlocking the talent of the rising generation of Muslim civic leaders. Through its nine-month national fellowship and four-day regional training programs, AMCLI identifies emerging leaders and provides them with a unique space to learn and connect with other dynamic leaders both inside and outside Muslim communities. AMCLI also empowers these individuals with practical tools around leadership, community organizing, conflict resolution and storytelling, among other skillsets, to help them increase their impact [242] [243].

4.4.3. NewGround. Los Angeles, California, USA.

NewGround is a Muslim-Jewish Partnership for Change empowers Jewish and Muslim Change-makers with the skills, resources, and relationships needed to improve Muslim-Jewish relations and strengthen cooperation on issues of shared concern. Through a professional fellowship, high school leadership council, and innovative public programming, NewGround works with a broad political and religious spectrum of Muslims, Jews and the institutions [244].

A Muslim Jewish Partnership for Change was founded to address and diminish the tensions between the Muslim and Jewish communities in Los Angeles, specifically in a post-9/11 context of mutual mistrust and suspicion. More importantly, NewGround was designed to create a national model for healthy relations, productive engagement, and social change between American Muslims and Jews. NewGround approaches conflict as natural and inevitable, yet not intractable -- no matter the history. Being stuck is a choice. Therefore, NewGround builds relationships between Muslims and Jews so that they can transform their communities through lasting partnership [242].

4.4.4. Tiyya Foundation. Los Angeles. Since 2010

The Tiyya Foundation is an award-winning 501 (c)(3) known for transforming the refugee living experience in the Greater Los Angeles & surrounding areas [245] by providing refugees of all backgrounds with the basic material, educational, and emotional support required to integrate into the communities. Tiyya uses a holistic approach to provide transitional assistance for families with the goal of empowering refugee youth to overcome the obstacles associated with social integration by building social support systems among refugee youth and working with parents to provide a healthy environment for their children [242].

4.4.5. “Building Community Resilience” pilot programme. Minnesota. Since 2014

The Minneapolis-St. Paul pilot program, “Building Community Resilience” was developed in partnership with the Somali Minnesotan community. It seeks to address the community-identified root causes of radicalization through increased opportunities and support.

Beginning in 2014, law enforcement and the U.S. Attorney’s office held meetings with a broad range of community members, including: religious leaders, youth leaders, women, mothers, mental health professionals, elders, victims of recruitment and others. The purpose of these meetings was to listen to the concerns of the Somali community and discuss potential solutions to the root causes of radicalization. Meetings were also held with local partners, including the Minneapolis and St. Paul school systems, non-government and non-profit organizations, interfaith organizations and with state, county and local governments. Together, these stakeholders crafted an action plan that directly responds to the identified root causes and community needs. In addition, they partnered with community leaders to develop two intervention models that allow the community to respond to radicalization at its earliest stages. Simply put, this is a community-led effort to break the cycle of terrorist recruiting [246].

5. MIGRATION – IDENTIFICATION CARDS

The lack of an ID document leads to a number of impediments when carrying out tasks that for many of us are simple, such as enrolling children in school or making a bank account. With no official way to identify who they are, many unauthorized immigrants and their families are forced to navigate an extremely difficult life. Government recognized identification cards have become a symbol of inclusion because they ensure undocumented immigrants access to certain public and private services [247].

The following are some examples of initiatives that have been carried out in this direction.

5.1. IDNYC Card. New York City

IDNYC is a card for all New Yorkers, from all backgrounds, and from all five boroughs that can be obtained free of charge regardless of immigration status. IDNYC cardholders enjoy benefits and discounts offered by businesses and cultural institutions across the five boroughs.

It provides an accepted government-issued photo identification which is a recognized ID for interacting with the New York Police Department (NYPD), gaining access to all City building that provide services to the public, qualifying for affordable housing through NYC Housing Connect, proving identity for employment, and health benefits.

IDNYC benefits all city residents, including the most vulnerable communities - the homeless, youth, undocumented immigrants, the formerly incarcerated, and others who may have difficulty obtaining government-issued photo ID [248].

This programme was launched on 2015 with the goal to provide New York City resident with a government-issued form of identification and reached 863,464 cardholders as of 2016. Cardholders are as young as 14 and older than 100, they speak more than 150 languages, and live throughout the City [249].

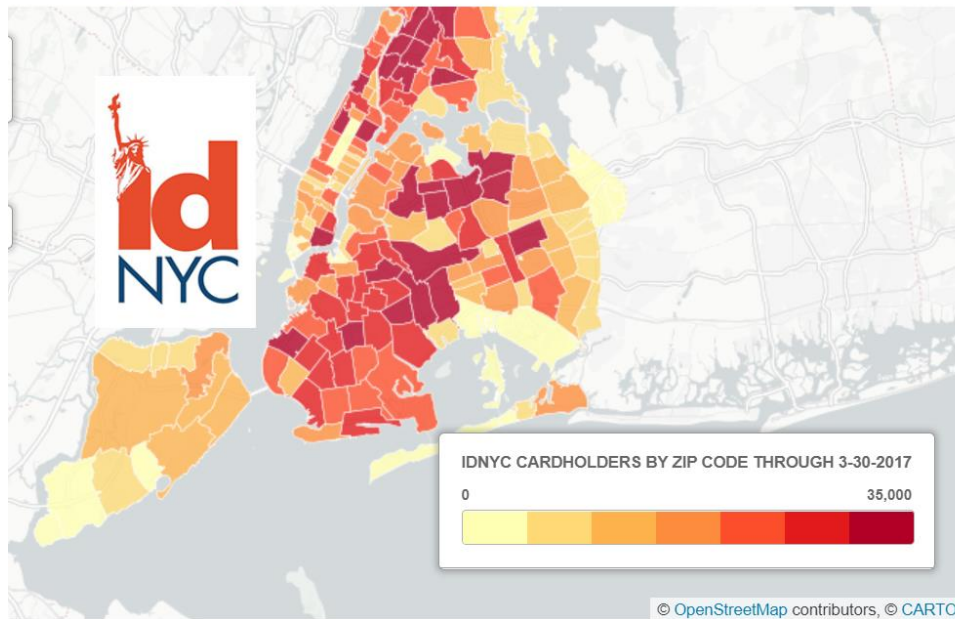

Figure 37. IDNYC cardholders by zip code through 3-30-2017 [248]

Following the evaluation of the NYMID Programme performed by Westat in 2016:

“Beyond these tangible benefits, IDNYC was described by many focus group participants to create a feeling of belonging, something that makes them feel like a “real” New Yorker. Among immigrants responding to the survey, 77 percent reported that their IDNYC card had increased their sense of belonging to the city. Immigrants participating in focus groups appreciated that, unlike carrying a passport, IDNYC conveys no information about one’s country of origin and implies nothing about legal status.” [249]

In addition, from the surveys conducted, a number of benefits have been achieved as of the evaluation date:

IDNYC includes provisions for multiple vulnerable populations.

The City’s response to unanticipated demand was immediate and substantial.

Outreach, advertising, and promotion of the card were extensive and effective

The card was designed to be stigma-free

The card is highly accessible

A collaborative approach to both design and implementation of the card was taken

But this project was not the first-of-its kind nor the only one. The City of New Haven, Connecticut implemented this card in 2007 and since then, at least 20 municipalities has followed it [250].

5.2. Immigration, Refugees and Citizenship Canada

Immigration, Refugees and Citizenship Canada facilitates the arrival of immigrants, provides protection to refugees, and offers programming to help newcomers settle in Canada. It also:

- grants citizenship and
- issues travel documents (such as passports) to Canadians

In this respect, one of the programmes being implemented is the Rural and Northern Immigration Pilot (November 2019 through December 2022) which is a community-driven program designed to spread the benefits of economic immigration to smaller communities by creating a path to permanent residence for skilled foreign workers who want to work and live in one of the participating communities [251].

There are four steps to applying for permanent residence under this pilot.

1. Check that you meet both
  - a. IRCC eligibility requirements and
  - b. the community-specific requirements.
2. Find an eligible job with an employer in one of the participating communities.
3. Once you have a job offer, submit your application for recommendation to the community.
4. If a community recommends you, apply for permanent residence.

There are currently 11 communities participating in this project and each one of them also have its own:

- additional eligibility requirements:
- job search process
- community recommendation application process [251].

6. SUPPORTING MATERIAL

6.1. MIGRATION

Title: Identity and Migration in Europe: Multidisciplinary Perspectives

Summary: Identity has increasingly become an important keyword in contemporary human and social sciences. Since the 1980s, research has intensively explored how meanings, expectations, and conflicts are associated with the different localities of individuals and groups; how individuals represent themselves using one or another element that constitutes their identity; how these elements can be categorized; and how multiple identities are compounded and negotiated when they conflict (Brubaker and Cooper 2000). The literature on this topic is so rich that it is nearly impossible to present an exhaustive overview of the different contributions in this field (Westin 2010). However, little attention has been devoted to the influence of migration on identity formation and transformation.

Title: Migrant Children's Integration and Education in Europe. Approaches, Methodologies and Policies.

Summary: This book reflects on a specific aspect of children's migration, namely the process of their integration into European societies.<sup>1</sup> It focuses particularly on education as one of the most important and powerful resources promoting the participation and inclusion of migrant children into host societies.

Title: Integration of young refugees in the EU: good practices and challenges

Summary: Over 2.5 million people applied for international protection in the 28 EU Member States in 2015 and 2016. Many of those who were granted some form of protection are young people, who are likely to stay and settle in the EU. The EU Agency for Fundamental Rights interviewed some of them, as well as professionals working with them in 15 locations across six EU Member States: Austria, France, Germany, Greece, Italy and Sweden. This report presents the result of FRA's fieldwork research, focusing on young people between the ages of 16 and 24.

Link: <https://fra.europa.eu/en/publication/2019/integration-young-refugees-eu-good-practices-and-challenges>

Title: Forced Migration Research. From Theory to Practice in Promoting Migrant Well-Being.

Summary: In 2018, the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees estimated 70.8 million people could be considered forced migrants, which is nearly double their estimation just one decade ago. This includes internally displaced persons, refugees, asylum seekers, and stateless people. This drastic increase in forced migrants exacerbates the already urgent need for a systematic policy-related review of the available data and analyses on forced migration and refugee movements.

To explore the causes and impacts of forced migration and population displacement, the National Academies convened a two-day workshop on May 21-22, 2019. The workshop discussed new approaches in social demographic theory, methodology, data collection and analysis, and practice as well as applications to the community of researchers and practitioners who are concerned with better understanding and assisting forced migrant populations. This workshop brought together stakeholders and experts in demography, public health, and policy analysis to review and address some of the domestic implications of international migration and refugee flows for the United States. This publication summarizes the presentations and discussions from the workshop.

6.2. PREVENTION OF RADICALISATION

Title: The contribution of youth work on preventing marginalisation and violent radicalisation. A practical toolbox for youth workers & Recommendations for policy makers. European Commission. 2016-2018.

Summary: The contribution of youth work as well as non-formal and informal learning to fostering active citizenship and participation of young people in diverse and tolerant societies, preventing marginalisation and radicalisation potentially resulting in violent behaviour.

Title: Youth work against violent radicalisation. Theory, concepts and primary prevention in practice. European Union. Council of Europe. 2018.

Summary: The 20 practices included in this research offer different perspectives on how diverse youth work approaches and methods can shape young people's attitudes, perceptions and behaviours. These practices are grouped in five categories: peer education; online campaigns and digital media; co-operation with other stakeholders; providing opportunities; and education and training. While all the practices presented here use more than one approach in the prevention of violent radicalisation, the grouping serves to showcase the interdisciplinary nature of the work, and a variety of approaches, activities and frameworks that youth workers use in their everyday activities. Based on these practices, and on the outcomes from the conference “Youth work against violent radicalisation” organised in Malta in November 2017, several findings, lessons, needs and challenges relevant for youth work have been identified.

Title: Prevention of radicalisation and manifestations of hate at grassroots level. Guidelines for local and regional authorities. Council of Europe 2015

Summary: On the basis of Resolution 384 (2015) [252] Guidelines for local and regional authorities on preventing radicalisation and manifestations of hate at the grassroots level, the text discusses, on the one hand, the concept of radicalisation and explores the various approaches to tackling the problem such as repression, prevention and reintegration of radicalised individuals. It presents concrete examples from local and regional levels of government in Council of Europe member States. It also engages with urban security and safety issues, recognising that security is part of fundamental rights, thereby underlining the necessity to balance the measures taken to combat radicalisation against the precepts of human rights, the rule of law and the aim to build inclusive and cohesive societies. The guidelines recommend that local and regional authorities design strategies to involve civil society in their work against extremism in all its manifestations, including hate speech, anti-Semitism and anti-Muslim sentiment and action. The local and regional authorities are asked to communicate their strategies to the general public in a balanced and responsible way, to exchange information on good practices, to support exit programs for individuals willing to leave extremism and to allocate resources to combat radicalisation. Local and regional authorities are invited to build alliances with other partners to develop co-ordination at the regional level as regards their activities on these issues.

Title: EUROCITIES. City responses on preventing radicalisation and violent extremism: social inclusion as a tool?. EUROCITIES. October 2016

Summary: EUROCITIES carried out a scoping exercise among its members in June 2016 to collect information on cities' actions to prevent radicalisation and violent extremism. A total of 28 cities from across Europe replied to the survey, giving details of their approaches, challenges and plans on the prevention of extremism and radicalisation at local level. The report presents the main findings of this survey and lessons learned so far, and is illustrated by examples from cities.

7. CONCLUSIONS

It is evident that there is no precise mathematics in fields involving human subjects, instead the environment and results are changeable depending on a multitude of factors. Migration flows have changed over the years and so have the reasons and needs for these movements. The result of these movements creates needs and consequences both for the people who migrate and for the countries that receive them.

Throughout the report, plans, initiatives, tools, practices and projects has been included both on migration issues, from a focus on the integration of these people, and on the prevention of radicalisation, understood in many cases as a result of a failure in the integration process according to most of the authors.
